IKE STATES TROOPS WILL STAY

State Is Studying Epidemic

State Health Department officials hinted today that the current epidemic of "head colds and sore throats" in the Monessen district may eventually be described as the much-heralded Asiatic flu.

Specimens of several Monessen cases are now undergoing labratory tests in Philadelphia. The long and involved anaylsis will probably produce no conclusive evidence for another week.

Until now, health officials have avoided calling the outbreak the Asiatic flu. But there were hints to the contrary today.

One department spokesman said his personal inspection of stricken students at Indiana State Teachers College led him to believe that they had contacted the Asian flu.

Officially, the department will make no statement on the virus until labratory studies are completed.

Spreading Slowly

The epidemic seemed to be spreading slowing in the district, but was picking up momentum elsewhere in the state. An estimated 10,000 persons, most of them students, have been hit in Pennsylvania by the unidentified virus.

In Monessen, all public schools have been closed since Tuesday. Today, St. Leonard parochial school also dismissed classes until Monday.

Rev. John Conway, assistant pastor at St. Leonard, said that tomorrow — the Feast of St. Francis — is normally a free day at the school. In view of rising absenteeism, it was decided to suspend classes until Monday.

Other parochial schools in the city, Holy Name and St. Hyacinth, reported normal attendances. The eighth grade at Holy Name had been dismissed earlier in the week but was back in session today.

Rostraver Improvement

At Rostraver Twp., school officials said the attendance picture had improved "slightly." However 40 per cent of the students were absent at the Junior High and 30 per cent at the Senior, High.

Bellmarette officials said attendance in their system was just about normal for this time of year. The same report came from school spokesman in Charleroi and Donora.

However the virus seemed to be spreading in Monongahela where 25 per cent of the high school students were ill. At Brownsville, seven members of the starting football team were in bed, forcing postponement of tomorrow's game with Charleroi.

District industries reported no loss in production as a result of the virus, which thus far has been pretty much confined to students.

Monessen city officials, as a precaution, have asked that all large public gatherings be cancelled this week in an effort to curb the epidemic. Dances, bingo games and a couple of meetings have been called off as a result.

The state Health Department has ordered all county medical directors to submit complete reports on new cases at noon today in an effort to pin down exactly the number of stricken persons and the spread of the disease.

The laboratory analysis, at Philadelphia Children's Hospital and the Allegheny County Hospital, was not expected for another week. Meanwhile, Malcolm Schonley, administrative officer in the department's Communicable Disease Control Division, said the state had an "acute shortage" of Asian flu vaccine.

"There just isn't enough vaccine

Hickey Pulls Out of Teamsters Election

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — One of James R. Hoffa's three opponents for the Teamsters Union presidency withdrew today and threw his support to another anti-Hoffa candidate.

Shortly after a wild demonstration around Convention Hall for Hoffa, Vice President Thomas L. Hickey of New York pulled out of the race and declared for William A. Lee of Chicago in a last-minute bid to derail the heavy favorite.

Hoffa appeared to be a sure winner in the race for the union's top job. Elections are scheduled later today.

Hickey said he had "several hundred" votes he expected to go to Lee, although Hoffa claimed that all his rivals could muster only about 200 of the convention's 1,900 votes.

Hickey announced his decision after a meeting with Lee and Thomas J. Haggerty of Chicago, now the only other candidate opposing Hoffa.

Hickey said support of Lee "offers the surest way of achieving victory for our joint objectives." Hickey said he and Lee wanted to restore the good name of the Teamsters and keep the 1,400,000-member union within the AFL-CIO.

Soviet System Losing Struggle With Its Youth

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —A former Russian Army tank commander declared Wednesday that the Soviet system has lost its greatest struggle...the battle for its youth.

Nicholas T. Goncharoff, a member of the staff of the International Committee of the YMCA's of the United States and Canada, expressed these views at a convocation at Temple University.

Goncharoff said the Russians have lost the struggle because of the recent Hungarian revolts. He added that the entire Soviet youth has been seized by a new wave of discussions about the Soviet system and society.

The Russian army drafted Goncharoff while he was a student at the University of Odessa in 1941. He was captured by the Germans a year later and later liberated by American troops.

Quints Born in France; Only Two Still Living

TOULON, France (UP)—Three of the Christophe quintuplets died Wednesday night and early today leaving only a tiny boy and girl struggling for life in incubators at Foch Hospital.

Two doctors and several nurses maintained a 24 hour vigil over the remaining two in hopes of preserving the fragile lives for their parents who had been childless for eight years.

The hospital reported the mother, Mrs. Camille Christophe, 28, was doing fine.

Mrs. Christophe gave birth to the quints—three girls and two boys — at St. Michael Clinic Wednesday. The babies, weighing about two pounds each, were rushed to Foch Hospital and placed in incubators.

Mrs. Christophe, a small woman who once was told she was sterile, had expected twins. The babies were three months premature.

Doctors refused to predict the chances for survival of the remaining two babies.

Mrs. Christophe and her husband, Laurence, 33, had been childless for the eight years of their marriage. Both have been working in the Social Security Administration at Tourlon, Mediterranean home of the French Navy. She quit three months ago.

Part of Christophe's job is paying benefits to persons who have children. If all their children had survived, the Christophes, who made about $200 a month together, would have gotten another $85 a month from the government.

The only survivors of quintuplets in the world are the Diligentis in Argentina—three girls and two boys—and the four Dionne sisters in Canada.

Two Try Escape From Pen

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Two convicts tried to escape from Western State Penitentiary before dawn today but they never got outside the prison walls.

Tower guards and the captain of the night watch spotted them on a roof of a building and sounded an alarm.

The guards found a crude 35-foot rope with a grappling hook fashioned out of scrap metal atop a mesh on the prison wall, and it was believed at first the men had gained the outside.

Within minutes Pittsburgh police and police from neighboring communities set up roadblocks at all bridges and scoured the prison area. But 45 minutes later the prison reported the men apprehended inside the walls.

The convicts were James E. Briggs, 26, sentenced last June in Greensburg to 7½ to 15 years for rape, and Jesse B. Taylor, 29, sentenced in Uniontown last December to life imprisonment for murder.

Warden Angelo Cavell said it was just as well the convicts didn't get a chance to climb the rope, strung together of old rags. He doubted it would have held.

'Dummies' on Cots

Cavell said it had not been determined how the men got out of their cells. He said they left "dummies" on their cell cots, climbed a one-story building formerly used as a power plant and then climbed a pipeline to a higher building about 35 feet from a prison wall.

The prisoners tossed the grappling hook to a wire mesh atop the wall, but they were spotted before they had a chance to climb the rope.

Briggs and Taylor were assigned to work details in the prison dining room, Cavell said.

Briggs had been convicted of raping a girl in Penn Township, near Pittsburgh. Taylor, of Shady Grove, near Uniontown, was convicted of shooting his brother-in-law Roy Pletcher, 24, to death in an argument over custody of Pletcher's five-months-old daughter.

When he was given life by Judge W. Russell Carr, Taylor said he was pleased with the sentence.

Chamber Sets Up Machinery to Hire Secretary

The Board of Directors of the Monessen Chamber of Commerce yesterday accepted the resignation of executive-manager George Cieply.

Cieply, who has served the Chamber for the past four years, asked to be relieved of his duties as of Nov. 1 in order to accept a position in the industrial relations department of the Pittsburgh Steel Co.

In accepting Cieply's resignation, the directors praised him for his "tireless efforts in behalf of both Monessen and the Chamber."

The directors have appointed a four-man screening committee to recommend a successor. The committee includes Charles Hagerstrand, president; A. E. Wilen, vice-president; Norman Henderson, chairman of the Merchants Division; and Harry Roberts, chairman of the audit and office procedure committee.

This group will set up the procedure for securing applicants.

Students Demonstrate At Little Rock High

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — About 50 white students walked out of Central High School today and burned an effigy figure of a Negro student in an organized demonstration against integration.

A heavily - reinforced troop guard promptly broke up the demonstration, dispersed the small crowd, and erected blockades to seal off the street in front of the high school.

The demonstration fell far short of the "mass walkout" of hundreds of white students which segregationist groups, including the so-called "Central High mothers' league," had sought to organize.

The vast majority of the nearly 2,000 students enrolled at Central High were sitting quietly in classes. School officials had warned in advance that anyone participating in the walkout would automatically be expelled.

Heaviest Guard

The demonstration took place about 9:10 a.m., less than an hour after nine Negro students had been escorted into the school under the heaviest armed guard since the first day of integration last Wednesday.

Tough paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division were back on the job, reinforcing members of the federalized Arkansas National Guard.

The sharp step-up in troop strength in and around the school reflected the concern of military commanders over efforts by teenage white agitators to stir violence against the Negro students inside the school.

Some of the white students said they would participate in a "mass walkout" from the school about 9 a.m. today.

At 7:45 a.m. c.s.t., an hour before school began, a detail of 120 paratroopers marched up to the blond brick building. It was the first time paratroopers had been on daytime sentry duty since National Guardsmen took over that task Tuesday. The paratroopers wore sun-tan uniforms instead of combat fatigues and helmets.

Sixty of them, armed only with billy clubs, took up stations in-

Newell Strike In Second Week

A strike at the Newell Plant of the General Chemical Co. was in its second week today with little prospect of an early settlement.

Federal Mediator Henry L. Maggiola has scheduled another meeting of company and union representatives for next Wednesday. A meeting earlier this week proved fruitless after the union voted unanimously to reject a company offer.

Pickets have been set up by the striking members of the United Construction Workers. A total of 127 employes are involved.

The plant is in full operation, with supervisory employes handling production.

GOP Challenges Democrats to Public Debates

Republican candidates for Common Pleas Court in Westmoreland County have challenged their Democratic opponents to a series of public debates.

County Commissioner Smith McKee Jr., general GOP campaign coordinator, said today that judicial candidates Avra N. Pershing Jr., Robert H. Rial and Willis E. Topper "Have expressed willingness to debate the issues of the campaign."

McKee said that Wayne R. Donahue, Republican candidate for district attorney, has also agreed to the debates.

"The Republican candidates will appear on any public platform with the Democratic nominees for the respective offices if meetings can be arranged," McKee said.

The Republican co-ordinator added that he is trying to set up such meetings in various parts of the county during the remaining weeks of October.

The Daily Independent was unable to reach Jay W. Kromer, Democratic county chairman, today for comment on the challenge.

One of the Democratic judicial nominees, Judge David H. Weiss of Monessen, said he received, no offer as yet to debate. He did not commenton the idea.

New Kensington Alderman Named

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today announced the appointment of Steve Tramonti, 300 Fourth St., New Kensington, as alderman in the sixth ward of that Westmoreland County city.

Tramonti replaces the late Charles H. Fleming. His appointment runs until next Jan. 6.

Weiss Says Democratic Party 'For the People'

"The Democratic party works for the people every day and not just on election day," Judge David H. Weiss, of Monessen, Democratic candidate for a full 10-year term in Westmoreland County Common Pleas Court, said last night.

Weiss was principal speaker at a Democratic rally held for party workers from South Huntingdon and Sewickley townships at Oakdale Park near West Newton. A capacity crowd attended.

The Monessen jurist, who is filling the unexpired term of the late Judge George H. McWherter, told the group, "I am sure the people of the county, state and nation appreciate what has been done for them by the Democrats."

Weiss spoke of the "all-time record of the Democratic party for the people." He singled out rural electrification, social security, federal bank control acts, world war bonus bills, and civil rights as a few of the programs the Democrats have sponsored.

He then cited county registration figures as a "good example why the voters still prefer the party for the people."

He pointed out that the Democrats out-registered the GOP by a 3-1 margin in overall new registrations for the coming Nov. 5 general election.

"While our rolls are going up, the Republicans' rolls are going down and we now have a lead of 51,000 in the county. We can make this lead pay dividends this fall when. . . we vote Democratic and maintain office holders who are for you — not just a few," Weiss declared.

He cited the recent win of Sen. William Proxmire in usually strong GOP Wisconsin, stating this is an indication that the "people want Democratic administra-

Faubus Will Negotiate, But Not Surrender

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — Gov. Orval E Faubus said today he is willing to negotiate further with President Eisenhower on the Litle Rock school integration crisis but he will not agree to a "complete and unconditional surrender."

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today that federal troops will have to remain in Little Rock unless Gov. Orval E. Faubus changes his stand on school integration and gives satisfactory and unequivocal assurance that law and order will be maintained.

There also must be assurance, the President said, that federal court orders on integration are not obstructed.

The President said that for the time being he sees no possibility of assuring continued attendance of Negro students at Little Rock's Central High School without keeping federal troops there.

He said he thought Faubus was mistaken in what he was doing. He said Faubus was committing a disservice to the city of Little Rock and the state of Arkansas.

Eisenhower expressed his views at his first news conference since the Little Rock crisis developed.

He deplored having to send federal troops to Little Rock in the first place. He said the use of such tactics was not good for the locality, not good for the troops and certainly not representative of America except in the most extreme cases where force was absolutely necessary to uphold the orders of a court.

Chaos Invited

To permit unchecked defiance of a court order, Eisenhower said, would be to invite chaos and anarchy.

He counseled a display of patience and tolerance on both sides of the integration issue. And he called on citizens to remember America as well as their own private prejudices.

At the outset of his conference, the President was told that the situation in Little Rock seemed to have reached an impasse. He was then asked what the prospects were for some sort of agreement with Faubus and what the next step would be.

The President replied that several things could happen:

—The committee of four Southern governors who conferred here with the President Tuesday, are naturally disappointed that they could not reach the desired agreement with Faubus. But these governors are not completely hopeless and are pursuing the purpose for which their committee was established by the Southern Governors Conference.

—Federal troops could be removed when Faubus supplies satisfactory and unequivocal assurances that the orders of the federal district court to open Central High School to Negroes will not be obstructed and law and order will be maintained.

—The factual, gradual development of a peaceful situation in Little Rock in which local police could maintain control.

The President said repeatedly

Youth in Fall From Tank War Memorial Here

Robert Bridge, 14, of Building 5, Park Manor, Monessen, was taken to Charleroi-onessen Hospital late yesterday morning for examination after he tumbled off the M4 Sherman tank which arrived in City Park less than 20 hours before.

The boy was examining the tank when he fell off and landed on the ground. He was knocked unconscious momentarily. An ambulance took him to the hospital where he was kept overnight for examination for possible concussion. He was to be released at noon today.

The 37-ton tank arrived on a trailer-tractor at City Park about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and is to be used as a war memorial under the auspices of Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Efforts to place the tank in position on a 12-inch concrete slab failed Tuesday afternoon when a winch on the tractor broke. The big machine was pulled within a few feet of the concrete slab.

Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka had issued warnings that persons, both adults and children, were to "keep off" the tank.

The Bridge youngster was not in school yesterday morning because of the current "cold epidemic."

"No one is permitted to board the tank," Kuvinka said today. He added that a police patrol will be made of the area frequently.

Workmen were expected to place the tank in position today.

Kelley Doesn't Think Much of Postal Service

WASHINGTON (UP) — Pennsylvania Congressman Augustine Kelley doesn't think much of the U.S. mail service.

It now takes two full days, he complained, to get a special delivery letter from Washington to Jeannette, in his home district.

"I don't call that service. I call that disruption of the mail," the Greensburg Democrat said.

Kelley said a Post Office Department spokesman informed him a letter must get to the main post office here at 4:20 p.m. in order to make a 11:15 p. m. train arriving at Jeannette the next morning. If it arrives a few minutes late at the post office it won't get to Jeannette until the second morning.

"This is the result of the administration's businesslike methods," Kelley concluded.

Burglars Break Into Thorofare

Burglars broke into the Thorofare supermarket at 11th St. and McKean Ave. in Charleroi about 2 o'clock this morning and escaped with an undetermined amount of merchandise, it was reported by Charleroi police.

Entry was made by breaking a glass in one of the front doors.

The burglary was discovered during a routine police check.

Store officials are taking inventory today to determine how much merchandise was taken. Some cigarettes are known to be missing.

Saudi Arabia Trying to Lead Arabs in the UN

Wants To Take Over Egypt's Place as Leader

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Saudi Arabia is trying to seize Egypt's place as leader of the Arab group in the United Nations, U.N. diplomats said.

The sources said the sharp denunciation of Western policies in the Middle East contained in the Saudi Arabian speech to the General Assembly Wednesday was a clear sign of this.

They said Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi could be expected to use even harsher language in the same vein today in order to soften the impact of the Saudi Arabian speech on the other Arab nations.

Many diplomats predicted Fawzi also would announce plans for compensating stockholders of the private company from which Egypt seized the Suez Canal in July, 1956.

There also was a likelihood he would demand the evacuation of the United Nations Emergency Force from the Gulf of Aqaba and the Gaza Strip on the grounds that peace has been restored and UNEF's job has ended.

Fawzi has consulted repeatedly with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold since his arrival here last Friday. Egyptian dispatches said UNEF and the compensation question comprised the chief subjects of their talks.

Ahmed Shukairy, a Palestine national who represented Syria in the United Nations in 1956, represents Saudi Arabia this year and delivered the speech for King Saud's government Wednesday.

tions. . . are tired of the Eisenhower doctrines which favor big business and the expense of the working man and small business man."

Continuing he said that while large corporations "are declaring their biggest assets, gains and profits, more 'out-of-business' signs are going up for the little merchant and the cost of living for the average American Joe has risen for the past 11 months."

He then went on to speak about himself, saying he "has been dealing with people and their problems" all his life. He added that he will "give understanding and mercy to their problems while on the bench. . ."

Other candidates speaking were: Judge Edward G. Bauer and District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco, who are seeking the other bench seats; Coroner Stephen D. Yoney, Monessen; Howard M. Bricker, clerk of courts; Earl S Keim, district attorney; and Dora M. Dunn, jury commissioner.

Tonight the candidates will address a rally at West Leechburg fire hall.

'Sunday' Christians Called Inadequate

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (UP)—"Sunday go - to - meeting Christians" have no place in today's world, the 95th annual Pennsylvania Sunday School Assn. convention was told Wednesday night.

"Once-a-week Christians are inadequate," Mrs. Clarence T. Nelson, Washington, D.C., a past president of the United Church Women of the District of Columbia, said.

Dilworth Won't Talk Right Now

SAINT MARY'S, Pa.—Democratic Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia says he isn't at present a candidate for governor but he's giving the matter thoughtful consideration.

Dilworth, addressing an Elk County Democratic fund - raising dinner Wednesday night, said he will announce his decision the week after the November elections.

Support Prices on Burley Tobacco Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday it will support prices of the 1957 crop of burley tobacco at an average of 51.7 cents a pound. This compared with a preliminary rate of 51.5 cents announced before the planting season.

The final rate was higher, officials explained, because the parity index—a measure of farmers expenses — is now higher than it was on March 15. Since the tobacco support rate is set by law at 90 per cent of parity, an increase in the parity figure produces a higher support price.

The final 1957 rate compares with a 1956 burley support price of 48.1 cents a pound.

The department today also announced final support rates for other types of tobacco. These included:

Fire - cured, types 21-23, 38.8 cents a pound; dark air-cured, types 35-36, 34.5 cents a pound; Virginia sun-cured, type 37, 34.5 cents a pound; Maryland, type 32, 48 cents a pound; Connecticut broad leaf cigar binder, type 51, 53.8 cents a pound; Connecticut Havana seed cigar binder, type 52, 48.8 cents a pound.

Final rates for cigar filler and binder tobaccos included:

Ohio filler, types 42-44, 23.2 cents a pound; New York and Pennsylvania Havana seed, type 53, 23.3 cents a pound.

Most of the prices announced today are higher by .2 cents to .5 cents a pound than the preliminary rates because of the increase in parity levels.

Price supports, under farm law, are mandatory for tobacco when federal marketing quotas are in effect.

Growers of Pennsylvania seed leaf, type 41, tobacco will not receive price support because they voted against accepting marketing quota controls on the 1957 crop.

that naturally the Little Rock situation stemmed from the over - all segregation issue, but that the troops were not there for the specific purpose of enforcing integration. He said the presence of the troops was needed to uphold and enforce the directive of a federal court. Without such enforcement, he said, the law and government of our forefathers would not exist.

The President made his statements at about the same time that nine Negro students were being escorted into Little Rock's Central High School under the heaviest armed guard used since the first day of integration there. Paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division were back on the job reinforcing troops from the federalized National Guard.

Faubus Also Seeing Newsmen

Faubus, who has bitterly protested the presence of federal troops in Little Rock, scheduled another news conference of his own in Little Rock.

Faubus's conference was scheduled for 11:30 a.m. e.d.t.

Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, chairman of the southern governors committee which sought unsuccessfully to bring about an Eisenhower-Faubus accord, also was expected to issue a statement on the situation sometime today.

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, who participated in the unsuccessful efforts to reach a troop-withdrawal agreement, said in Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday night he believed a basis would be found for "early withdrawal" of troops from Little Rock. He also expressed "belief and hope" similar use of federal troops would not occur again.

Other Advisers Disagree

But the President's advisers here held little hope of any early break in the deadlock. They felt, on the basis of Faubus' statements Tuesday night and Wednesday, that "nothing reasonable" would appeal to him at present.

The advisers considered it better therefore to let the situation cool down for a few days before making any new overtures from here. This coincided with a forecast by Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, one of four "moderate" southern governors who attended Tuesday's White House meeting, that there would be no solution "before the week end at the earliest."

being manufactured to go around," Schonley said.

Up to Tuesday, Pennsylvania had received 372,066 shots of vaccine for distribution to a population of more than 11 million people. Also the department has advised local health units to set up priority lists to inoculate hospital personnel, police and firemen and other essential workers.

Health officials said the flu "outbreaks" have been generally confined to the southeast, southwest and northeast sections of the state with mostly high school and college students stricken. Most cases were reported mild, with the stricken fully recovered within three or four days.

Officially, 23 cases of Asian flu have been identified in the Commonwealth with no deaths reported.

Numerous high school football games were cancelled or rescheduled when flu hit squads, sidelining 20 players alone at New Kensington.

School Absenteeism High

At Lock Haven State Teachers' College at least one-half the student body was down with virus as officials counted 500 ill. In Northampton County 2,600 junior and senior high school pupils were absent from classes.

State health officials urged calm in the wake of the influenza outbreak, advising persons to seek vaccination from their private physicians and if possible keep out of crowds. They reiterated that Asian flu was comparatively mild and no complications had been reported following the initial contact.

The department declined to speculate on what course the flu would take, indicating a continued upswing of new cases and positive identification of the flu strain would determine if the state is to fall victim to a full scale epidemic. The department said a study of the attack rate of the Asian flu showed that in epidemics it struck between 20 and 40 per cent of the population.

Absenteeism was as high as 35 per cent in the senior and junior high schools of Delaware County, and the scheduled game Friday between Radnor and Upper Merion was cancelled.

Dr. Franklin H. Reeder, regional state medical director, said the outbreak of colds and grippe were mild and it would not be necessary to take samples for possible Asian flu.

In Pittsburgh, the Allegheny County Board of Health planned a special meeting today to get up-to-date reports. Dr. Arthur G. Baker, county health director, said the flu pattern was "spotty," with less than 5,000 cases in the county and most of the mild variety.

Baker said absenteeism in industry was "not abnormal" in the area.

Flu Patients Told to Remain Calm, Get Rest

HARRISBURG (UP)— A Pennsylvania Medical Society spokesman today advised persons stricken with influenza to remain calm and treat the virus symptoms as they would a common cold.

Dr. Harold B. Gardner, society secretary, said most cases could be treated successfully at home, but suggested the family physician should be notified as a precautionary measure.

Gardner listed these symptoms as indicating Asian flu: a sudden onset of sniffles, sore throat, and stuffed up head followed within 24 hours by a high temperature. In adults the temperatures generally average 103 degrees. The stricken usually experience a general aching feeling and some weakness but recover within three to four days.

The doctor said the stricken should be treated as if they had an ordinary cold. General comfort is called for, with the ill put to bed.

Claims Girard Fired On Other Japanese

MAEBASHI, Japan (UP) — Two prosecution witnesses testified today Army Spl-3 William S. Girard fired on other Japanese metal pickers the day he killed Mrs. Naka Sakai on the U.S. firing range at Camp Weir.

The witnesses, Hatsuo Kanai and Tosnizo Koyama, identified Girard as the soldier who fired at them and another shell scavenger, Isamu Shukuhara, o nthe morning of last Jan. 30.

Mrs. Sakai was fatally wounded that afternoon by a used shell casing fired into her back from the grenade launcher on Girard's rifle. Girard is being tried for manslaughter by a Japanese court in the shooting.

Girard has maintained the shooting was accidental, that he fired only to frighten Mrs. Sakai away from equipment he was guarding.

The court remained in session for more than eight hours, the longest since the trial began last month. It will resume Friday morning.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Itsuro Hayashi, Kanai admitted discrepancies between his testimony before the court and the statement he gave to a prosecutor several months ago.

Kanai said he did not hear Girard shout to Mrs. Sakai before firing. But he retracted the statement when Hayashi pointed out he had said he heard Girard shout "Get out, hey" in his earlier deposition.

SLAIN TROOPER AND FAMILY — Michigan State Trooper Douglas Pellot (left), 27, was one of two troopers killed by two gunmen in a series of gun battles across Michigan and Indiana. At the right is his widow and year-old son, Kay Ellen and Gregory. Three other officers were wounded. One of the gunmen was slain and the second, identified as Victor W. Whitley, 26, of Granger, Tex., surrendered when three Indiana policemen spotted him in a thinly-wooded area five miles south of North Vernon.

Wife Not Told of Her Husband's Death

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UP) —Relatives today shielded Mrs. Shibley Talamas from the news that her husband, an American citizen, was beaten to death this weekend by Haitian police.

Mrs. Talamas has been confined to bed since the birth of her first baby early Sunday and it was feared announcement of her husband's death would weaken her.

Instead members of the family told her Talamas was being held in prison under orders to leave Haiti.

Talamas died Sunday in police custody after being arrested as he broke the 8 p.m. curfew in a frantic search for a doctor for his wife.

The ruling military junta said he died of a heart attack during a scuffle The United States charged in a formal note of protest that he was the victim of "murder by beating."

Members of the family said burial arrangements for Talamas would be postponed until his wife is told the truth—probably after she leaves the hospital Saturday.

Talamas was educated in the United States. He attended the Hargrave Military Academy in Virginia and later studied business administration at the University of Texas.

After completing his studies in Texas, he returned in 1950 to Haiti and became manager of the Bonneterie Nationale undershirt factory—a joint enterprise of his family and the Valley Knitting Co. of Pottsville, Pa.

side the school, where a force of eight National Guardsmen Wednesday was unable to prevent several minor racial incidents.

The other sixty, armed with carbines without bayonets, were stationed at various entrances and on the steps to the schools.

National Guardsmen were still assigned to the job of walking patrol along the sidewalks adjacent to the building. About 20 Guardsmen were on such patrols this morning.

Wednesday there had been only eight soldiers — all Guardsmen—on duty inside the school. They were unable to prevent several minor racial incidents in which white teen-agers chased, crowded, pushed and otherwise heckled the six Negro girls and three Negro boys attending Central High under orders of a federal court.

Three white students were suspended for Wednesday's activities. Two of them told reporters there was an organized plan among some students to torment the Negroes in the hope they would quit school if made "miserable."

School officials meanwhile threatened to expell students involved in a reported walkout scheduled this morning. The boycott from classes was said to have been organized and encouraged by the new segregationist "mothers League" at the school, not connected with parent-teacher association groups.

The Army was reported looking into means of isolating the instigators before they accomplish their aim of causing serious trouble. School officials already have suspended three white boys as the result of inside-the-school incidents against Negro students the past two days. The events have occurred since the 101st Airborne paratroopers surrendered escort tasks to the federalized National Guard.

Lost persons in the United States who run away from home are not children, but adults—some of them over 65 years of age.

Lawrence Says Housing Act Needs New Look

NEW YORK (UP)—Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh says the National Housing Act needs an "entirely new look."

In testimony Wednesday before the House Intergovernmental Relations subcommittee, Lawrence said, "Urban renewal, to be worthy of the name, calls for a plan for the whole city—not simply a project here and another there."

He said several sections of the act have such severe restrictions that it is virtually impossible for private investors to construct adequate housing.

"Indeed some of the restrictions seem designed to actually throttle rather than to aid urban renewal," he said.

Lawrence urged that Congress recognize the need for a continuing urban renewal program and establish it on a 10-year basis with sufficient funds to plan ahead with assurance that adequate federal assistance will be available.

By such action, Congress will remove the doubt and fears which now hold back long range planning for renewing cities, the mayor said.

Justice Dept. Probes Corruption in Unions

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower disclosed today that the Justice Department for some months have been investigating charges of corruption in labor unions.

So far, he said, the department has not made a report.

Eisenhower made the statement at his news conference when asked whether the government planned any further steps to curb labor corruption or collusion in the labor-management field. The questioner said he referred particularly to the Teamsters Union and the trucking industry.

The President replied that he began conferring with his top labor and legal aides when the corruption charges were first made. He said the object was to determine whether the government could take any further steps.

Eisenhower's press conference was devoted almost exclusively to the Little Rock, Ark., school integration crisis.

He said there were two conditions under which federal troops could be withdrawn from Little Rock's Central High School:

—Unequivocal assurance from Gov. Orval E. Faubus that he would maintain law and order and not obstruct a federal court's integration orders.

—Local law enforcement officials could keep the situation under control in the absence of federal troops.

The President, in a brief discussion of the federal budget, said it is going to be extremely hard to cut federal spending to 70 billion dollars a year.

For one thing, he said, all departments want more money, partly because of rising costs.

Eisenhower said that he did not see how the defense budget can be brought below 38 billion dollars. But he held out some hope of cuts by cutting back more on other programs like water pollution, power developments and vocational training to state governments.

claimed, would lead to expulsion of the truckers union from the parent federation.

Shouting, stomping supporters of Hoffa staged a big show of strength a few hours before the balloting.

Block long lines of noisy Hoffa delegates, wives and children wound around the city block surrounding the convention hall in step with several three - piece bands.

The bands woke delegates up earlier at the hotels and started a pre - breakfast dance in the hotel lobbies.

A few supporters of Hoffa's rivals broke out signs but they lacked the enthusiasm of those carrying the red and white Hoffa banners.

The vote, which is expected to defy AFL-CIO cleanup orders by electing Hoffa, is expected this afternoon, but could be delayed by other convention business.

The final roadblock to Hoffa's overwhelming election to succeed Dave Beck was brushed aside Wednesday night when the defiant convention voted to toss in the wastebasket corruption charges by the AFL-CIO's Ethical Practices Committee. Also voted down was a move to make the ballot secret which would have helped anti-Hoffa forces and an AFL-CIO recommendation that officers' terms be limited to four years.

Ouster Now Likely

The lopsided vote to ignore accusations in a report by the Ethical Practices Committee of the parent union almost insured that the AFL-CIO would boot out the Teamsters in December. The Teamsters defiance to the AFL-CIO is certain to bring action at the federation's Atlantic City, N.J. convention then.

On the first test of strength at the convention here, Hoffa backers outnumbered their opponents by a five-to-one margin. The delegates listened to the report, a blistering indictment of Hoffa, outgoing President Dave Beck and other top officials for more than two hours. They seemed bored by it all.

Then in rapid fire action, they thundered a mighty "no" to suggestions that the union investigate the charges. An overwhelming "aye" wiped the report from the convention record moments later.

No Formal Defense

Beck and Teamsters Vice President Frank Brewster were accused of misusing thousands of dollars in union funds in the report. Beck did not make a formal defense but said he would answer charges in court. He is indicted on charges of evading federal income tax.

The near-final report by Credentials Chairman Roy Williams set the stage for the balloting to begin. Williams said the committee rejected the credentials of 231 of 1,880 delegates to the convention. The groups seated number 1,629 plus 40 international officers and organizers.

Most of the delegations challenged by Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.) were seated despite the senator's claim that he had proof they were improperly chosen. Williams said the committee found no reason to bar the delegates questioned by the chairman of the labor rackets investigation.

Future of Penn State Outlined

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —The Pennsylvania State University has come a long way since its founding, but there still is much to be done before it can take its place among the nation's great universities, its new president said today.

Dr. Eric A. Walker, 47, made the statement as he was inaugurated 12th president of the university. He succeeded Dr. Milton Eisenhower, who resigned last year to head Johns Hopkins University, and has been acting as president since last December.

In his inaugural address, Walker said Penn State faces the greatest challenge in its history.

He said it will be expected to provide an education for at least twice as many Pennsylvania Youth "within the next few years" as it has provided in the past.

To do this, he said, it will have to effect "something that approaches an educational miracle."

Walker said the university must avert the danger of "being forced to restrict the possibility of college going to an elite, privileged class."

Its job is to provide a sound, rigorous university training for all Pennsylvania youth who want it and are capable of profiting from it, he said.

"We cannot do it by limiting our enrollment to the upper 10 per cent of the population in intelligence, as many seem to think we should," he said.

"Penn State has, I think, made a significant start . . . by pioneering the two-year associate degree programs offered in our centers and by offering an increasingly greater number of honors courses and programs aimed at challenging the outstanding student."

Edwin A. Swink, county GOP chairman, said ticket sales indicate the largest Republican gathering in the county in years. He said tickets are still available through Republican headquarters in Greensburg.

Toastmaster for the affair will be Harold A. Stewart, Latrobe attorney and GOP state committeeman.

The Irwin Council of Republican Women has announced that a candidates' tea, originally scheduled for Oct. 16, has been changed to Oct. 15. It will be held at 1 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph S. Storey, Clay Pike, Irwin.

Kelley, Morgan Given Top Ratings by ADA

WASHINGTON — Rep. Augustine B. Kelley, D., Westmoreland County, Pa., is one of only 39 members of the House to earn a 100 per cent rating as a "liberal" from Americans for Democratic Action.

Rep. Thomas Morgan, D., who represents Washington, Fayette and Greene counties, also in Pennsylvania, was another of the chosen few.

Americans for Democratic Action is a left-wing group which describes itself as "liberal" and non-partisan but whose endorsements generally go to Democrats of the New and Fair Deal persuasion.

Reviewing the voting records of the recent session of Congress, ADA found only 9 senators and 39 representatives to whom it could give a 100 per cent "liberal quotient" rating.

The test for members of the House was based on nine roll-calls, including questions on civil rights, domestic economy, foreign policy and school construction.

Kelley and Morgan earned the "perfect" rating by voting the ADA position on all the test votes.

All of the 9 senators and 39 representatives approved by the ADA are Democrats. The ADA said 26 Democrats and 26 Republicans had opposed its position on all of the key votes

Among the nine senators with "perfect" scores was Joseph S. Clark, D., Pennsylvania.

Fire Insurance Rates Increased In Pennsylvania

Fire insurance rates have been increased approximately four per cent in Pennsylvania on term policies of three and five years, a Monessen agency pointed out today.

The revised rates went into effect last Sept. 20 on the recommendation of the Middle Department Association of Fire Underwriters, Philadelphia.

Premiums paid yearly will not be affected by the change However payments on three and five year insurance will be increased.

Previously, a policy with an annual premium of $10 cost $25 if purchased for a three-year period. Now that same policy will cost $27.

Over a five-year period, a policy with an annual $10 premium cost $40. Under the new rates, the five-year cost will be $44.

The new rates apply to fire insurance covering buildings and contents. All companies operating in Pennsylvania are bound to observe the rates as established by the state Insurance Department.

Chamber Dinner Ticket Sale Is Big Success

Persons are urged to purchase tickets this week for the annual Monessen Chamber of Commerce banquet at Twin Coaches Tuesday, Oct. 15, Frank P. Ezerski and Leonard Stern, general co-chairmen, announced today.

Most of the 1,000 tickets placed on sale already have been purchased, they said.

The remaining tickets can be bought at the Chamber office at 335 Schoonmaker Ave.

The banquet will feature Drew Pearson, internationally famous newspaper columnist, as guest speaker.

Women are especially invited to attend, as are out-of-town residents. Andrew Kritsky, ticket chairman, stated.

Haluska Throws In Sponge in Hoxsey Case

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The government has emerged a winner in its battle with the Hoxsey Cancer Clinic at Portage, Cambria County.

John J. Haluska, administrator of the clinic and former state senator, threw in the sponge Wednesday and agreed to halt the treatment of out-of-state patients.

Federal Judge John L. Miller signed a permanent injunction enjoining the clinic from treating such patients. His order becomes effective Nov. 1, but a temporary injunction will remain in effect until that time.

Haluska's attorneys consented to Judge Miller's order, thus cutting short a non-jury trial in which the clinic had fought the government's request for a permanent injunction. The trial had lasted eight days.

In addition, Haluska told U.S. Atty. D. Malcolm Anderson he would drop his appeal from an earlier Federal Court verdict upholding the government's action in confiscating 500,000 pills at the clinic on grounds they were mislabeled as cancer cures.

Charleroi Chamber Okays Sale of Land

Members of the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce voted last night to approve the sale of four acres of land in Recreation Park to the U. S. Army as a site for a training center.

The vote was overwhelming, 203 for the sale: 74 against.

David S. Bosson, executive manager of the Chamber, pointed out that the vote was "extra legal." Actually the Park Trustees already have the authority to make the sale, Bosson said.

Last night's vote was intended to sound-out the sentiment of the rank-and-file Chamber members. Also permitted to cast ballots were donors to the Recreation Park Fund.

Bosson said many of the ballots were submitted by proxies.

Prior to the voting, members were given an opportunity to ask questions or express opinions on the sale. Bosson described the meeting, which was held in the Elks Club, as "orderly and informative."

The Park Trustees are already on record as favoring the sale by a five to one majority. The Chamber's Board of Directors has also okayed the transaction by a 15-1 vote.

Presumably, the Trustees will now go ahead with negotiations.

The Army has offered $24,750 for the four acre tract. The proposed Army building will cost an estimated half-million dollars.

Reportedly the Army center will include a drill hall, rifle range, showers, and meeting rooms. When not in use by the military, it would be made available for community purposes.

Proponents of the sale have argued that the building will help serve a community need until a proposed field house is constructed as part of the overall park development plan.

No Segregation Ticket Sale, Fulton Warns

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Rep. James G. Fulton R-Pa. says he will ask for a federal injunction to block the Army-Tulane football game at West Point Nov. 16 if tickets are sold on a segregated basis.

Segregation on federal property is illegal," he declared Wednesday at a meeting of the Allegheny County Council on Civil Rights.

Fulton said he sent a telegram to that effect to Maj. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, superintendent of West Points, nine days ago without receiving a reply.

Should there be segregated ticket sales for that game, he said he would bring a taxpayer's suit asking the government to block the game.

Fulton was responsible for transfer of the Army-Tulane game from New Orlean's Sugar Bowl to West Point. He protested to President Eisenhower, the secretary of defense and the Pentagon over a Louisiana law forbidding athletic contests between Negroes and whites.

His latest stand is based on a Louisiana law which provides for ticket sales on a racial segregation basis.

I have reports that tickets are being sold in Louisiana for stadium seats in West Point," he said. "The football stadium at West Point is federal property and there can be no racial segregation there any more than in federal offices, cafeterias, post offices and the like.

"We can't have a Missouri compromise at West Point with a stadium that is half slave and half free."

Gov. Faubus Again

THE CONFERENCE between President Eisenhower and the four governors representing the Southern Governors Conference did not result in an immediate solution for the predicament at Little Rock. Nor did it seem to find a clear course to be followed in the future to avert similar situations.

The fly in the ointment at Little Rock is still Governor Faubus, whose motives in this matter are becoming increasingly difficult to respect. Requested by the other governors to make a specific pledge to use his authority to maintain the law, Governor Faubus comes back with a cagey statement to the effect that "the orders of the federal courts will not be obstructed by me." Which would mean only what Governor Faubus wanted it to mean at any given time.

Of course the President could not accept these weasel words, especially not from a man whose good faith he had been given reason to doubt. Mr. Eisenhower has no choice but to maintain what he calls "federal surveillance" at Little Rock.

So from the standpoint of concrete accomplishment the White House conference has to be regarded as a failure.

However, the four governors all seemed to think that the meeting was worthwhile. Governor Collins of Florida, chairman of the committee, said he thought "much good" would come from it. And the President in his statement commended the governors for their "cooperative attitude".

While the public has been given no information to support these sentiments, we must hope that they are justified.

Right solutions for the problems of integration are going to come from the minds of prudent, responsible Americans reasoning together in good will. There are many such Americans in the south; there is another one in the White House. And all such men are entitled to the support and confidence of the people.

The Wrong Road

NOW THAT law and order have been restored at Little Rock, Governor Faubus and other segregationists are reported seeking other means of circumventing the Constitution.

Among the alternatives is a plan to have the Arkansas legislature take Central High School out of the public school system, close it and then re-open it as a private institution not accepting Negro students.

This plan did not originate in Arkansas. South Carolina, in fact, already has legislation on its statute books which would be used to abolish the public school system entirely if attempts are made at integration.

All such legislation is of very doubtful constitutionality according to many lawyers who have studied the subject. But even if the plan is legally feasible, we should think the people of the south would want to consider long and carefully before resorting to it.

What would America be today without the public school system? Could our nation have achieved what it has without the public schools?

The questions answer themselves.

Cieply Resigns

NOT ONLY the Monessen Chamber of Commerce but the whole community is suffering a loss with the resignation of George Cieply as the Chamber's executive manager.

Mr. Cieply has been doing much more than just a good professional job as the paid executive of the community's top civic organization. To that job he has added the kind of unselfish sincerity, intelligent enthusiasm and complete dedication that can't be hired with just money.

Perhaps it was only a question of time until the Monessen Chamber would have to relinquish these talents. And there is consolation in the fact that Mr. Cieply is remaining in Monessen with the Pittsburgh Steel Co.

But the Chamber has a very vital role to play here in the busy years just ahead, years which promise so much that is good for Monessen. And we hope a good replacement can be found. It won't be easy.

The druggists may be enjoying this epidemic of whatever-you-call-it, but we can be grateful that the undertakers aren't.

The price of haircuts in Monessen has gone up to $1.75. And still no rebates for baldies.

Today and Tomorrow—

Integration a Problem in Persuasion

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The situation at Little Rock is one which is not uncommon in human affairs — that here is not in sight the prospect of a solution which can win general approval. The President cannot hope to be faithful to his commitments and at the same time to satisfy such eminent Southern leaders as Byrd, Byrnes and Russell — not to mention demagogues like Faubus.

Mr. Lippmann

There exists a national predicament, with the President in the middle of it. Since the issue cannot be settled by agreement, the first necessity is that the issue should be clearly and precisely defined. Men of honor and good will can live together, though they disagree, if it is quite clear what it is that they differ about.

It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that there should come from the White House an exact and authoritative statement as to why the Arkansas National Guard was federalized, why federal troops were sent into Little Rock, how those federal troops can be withdrawn, how the National Guard can be restored to the control of the state of Arkansas.

Reason not Explained

On two occasions — after his conference with Gov. Faubus in Newport and in his broadcast last week — the President did not define the real reason which justified, and indeed compelled, him to take the military measures. The real reason was that Gov. Faubus, by ordering the National Guard to bar the Negro children and then by withdrawing it in the face of a mob, had emasculated the law enforcing power of the state of Arkansas. Taking Gov. Faubus' explanation at its face value, it comes down to a plea that the state of Arkansas was unable to preserve order at the school unless he nullified the law. Thus, there existed a vacuum in the law enforcing powers of the sovereign state of Arkansas and it was this vacuum that the federal government has been compelled to fill.

On Saturday, in his telegram to Sen. Russell, the President had been better advised than at the Newport conference and in his broadcast. He arrived at the real issue, which, as he put it, is that "the police powers of the state of Arkansas" have "been utilized. . . to frustrate the order of the court." This is solid ground for him to stand upon. For men like Byrd, Byrnes, and Russell have not said, and would not say, that a state may use the National Guard to nullify the laws of the United States.

Issue Is Crucial

The exact definition of the real issue is of crucial importance in dealing with the question of how the federal power can be withdrawn from Little Rock. This is the question which the President agreed to discuss on Tuesday with the committee of five Governors, headed by Gov. Collins of Florida, who represent the Southern Governors' Conference.

This question has two parts. One is when can the federal troops from the airborne division be withdrawn? The other is when can the Arkansas National Guard be discharged from the federal service?

The answers to the first question is that the federal troops can be withdrawn as soon as the Arkansas National Guard, now under Federal orders, is judged to be able and willing to preserve order and to enforce the law.

The answer to the second question is, I submit, that the National Guard cannot be discharged from the federal service until the Governor of Arkansas reverses his orders to the National Guard, and commits it to enforce the law and to preserve order. The federal intervention can end only when the police powers of the state of Arkansas have become again agencies for the enforcement of the law. The President cannot agree to anything less than this condition. To do so would be to establish an intolerable, and an infinitely dangerous, precedent — that a state may use its troops to nullify the laws of the United States.

The Integration Problem

Having settled this, we must remain acutely aware that integration in the public schools of the south cannot be treated solely or mainly as a problem in federal law enforcement. That was the vice of Title 3 of the civil rights bill that Congress dealt with during the summer. Integration is a problem in persuasion and consent, which cannot be solved by injunctions and soldiers.

My own view has been that we ought long since have begun "asking ourselves whether the decision of the Supreme Court does not need to be supplemented" by a national policy and program of guidance and aid as to when, where, how far and how fast, integration should proceed in different school districts, and at the various levels of the elementary school, the high school, the college, and the professional schools.

"The wisest policy is to proceed by stages, beginning as soon as possible with integration in the universities, in the graduate schools of law, medicine, education, engineering, theology — and where it can be done without causing social convulsions in the bigger colleges. The object of this would be to train a new generation of white and colored men and women who will be the leaders in their communities."

This was written a year ago. It was written in the conviction that the worst place to begin integration is in co-educational schools for teen-agers, and that the best place to begin integration is at the level of higher education. I do not believe that it is now wise, or indeed possible, to combine for adolescent school children co-education with integration. It is wise and it is possible to open up higher education.

It is, I think, significant that at the level of higher education Arkansas is a leader in integration among the southern states.

Merry-Go-Round—

Arab Refugees Live in Hate

By DREW PEARSON

JERICHO, Jordan — Just outside this ancient city whose walls crumpled when Joshua blew seven times on seven trumpets is one of the great festering trouble-spots of the Near East.

The city of Jericho is without walls today. It sprawls out at the northern tip of the Dead Sea, 1,300 feet below sea level, where the Jordan River pours its fresh water into a body of water that is so salty fish cannot live. For miles around, the shore is pure salt crystal.

Mr. Pearson

It's hot alongside the Dead Sea, stifling hot. But between Jericho and the sea is a camp of 35,000 refugees, fled from Israel during the Arab attack of 1948. They now clamor to go go back. And their clamor, plus that of other refugees, constitutes the most upsetting political force in this upset part of the world.

These are the poor refugees, not the doctors, lawyers, and professional men whh have contributed greatly to the Arab states.

I drove out from Jericho to the camp. It is constructed of mud brick houses similar to those I helped build for Montenegrin refugees made homeless by the Austrian army after World War I. They are good houses, still standing in Yugoslavia, and those near Jericho are good houses too.

The chief difference is that these refugees don't work. The American Friends Service Committee in Yugoslavia operated on the rule: "No work, no eat." We provided work. But the Arab refugees in Jordan either can't get work, are not supplied work, or don't want to work. In Lebanon they are not permitted by law to work.

"Get the Traitor!"

An exception is Musa Alami. Near Jericho he drilled a well, struck water, started a truck farm. He raised chickens, installed a refrigeration plant, planted bananas, and soon operated a thriving business, hauling his produce to American Oil company employes in Saudi Arabia.

But one day last spring, when Jordan was seething against the west, the refugees at Jericho decided to take out their vengeance on one of their own number. Storming down the road to Musa Alami's farm, yelling "Get the traitor!" they destroyed his refrigerator, plants, and wrung the necks of 35,000 chickens.

(Editor's note: Drew Pearson, writing from the Arab state of Jordan, discusses the explosive subject of Arab refugees.)

Musa had employed at times as many as 1,200 refugees. However, he made the fatal mistake of accepting the permanency of his residence in Jordan. He had sent down new roots in his adopted country, had given up the idea of returning to Israel. This is what made him a traitor.

During the nine years the refugees have been sitting in heat and idleness at the head of the Dead Sea, they have built up a burning, passionate hate. They hate Israel and they hate Britain and the United States which have befriended Israel. Fanatic Arab leaders have used this as a weapon. Moderate Arab leaders have bowed to it because they are prisoners. Bitterness has become too strong. It was one reason the British and Glubb Pasha were kicked out of Jordan and why Jordan spent three days this year celebrating the anniversary of his exit. It's also why Jordan, while accepting American arms, will not accept an American military mission to help them use those arms.

Would They Go Back?

Moderate Arab leaders will tell you privately that if the refugees were given a chance to go back to Israel, only a handful would go back. They claim, however, that Israel must make the gesture of inviting them back, in order to "save face" for the refugees.

The United Nations, meanwhile, has been doing a superhuman job of sitting on this explosive lid. Without the meagre $27 a year the UNRWA spends to keep the refugees alive they would have precipitated war by marching across the border into Israel en masse.

The UN staff is among the best in this part of the world. But they know they face superhuman political obstacles until the basic problem is solved.

There are millions of refugees in other parts of the world — from Communist Indo-China to free Indo-China, from India and Pakistan, from Germany, Poland, and Egypt to Israel, from Hungary all over the world. In most of these cases the refugees do not return to their former homes. They are resettled.

But in the Arab countries, they have been permitted to ferment in camps for nine years as a weapon of political hate.

The River Jordan as it flows into the Dead Sea is only 50 feet wide. But in terms of progress it is 500 years wide.

When the Prophet Joshua crossed the Jordan in the days when the walls of Jericho were still standing, he was endowed with the divine power to make the Jordan stand still.

I could not help but think as I crossed the Jordan that if the 35,000 refugees sitting in the heat of Jericho had worked at it, they too could have made the River Jordan stand still. In nine years they could have built a great irrigation project which would have turned the barren wastes around them into green fields. Instead they have sat in bitterness and filth while the fresh waters of the Jordan continue flowing into the brine of the Dead Sea.

South Losing Voice in Politics of the Nation

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—The evidence is piling up that southern leaders are thinking hard about the fact that the South is being cut adrift politically.

The influence of southerners in the councils of the Democratic Party gradually has been pinched off. Southern votes cast for Republican presidential candidates have gained no influence there for the southern point of view.

Mr. Wilson

What to do about all of this is something southern Democratic spokesmen and office holders must now consider — along with the significant fact that the new Negro vote in the South may be coming up with new leaders and new office holders.

The direction of southern political thinking was indicated last week by James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, a qualified spokesman for his state. South Carolina is one of those in the South committed by its legislature to defy racial integration in the schools by every legal means.

Byrnes Lists Objectives

He served in the House and Senate, as associate justice of the Supreme Court, as secretary of state and, more recently, as governor of South Carolina.

At Bennettsville, S.C., last week, Byrnes snipped out a pattern for southern political action and objectives, as follows:

"Notwithstanding the political gloom which now surrounds us, the South may be restored to its place in the councils of the nation if its leaders, forgetting all political differences, will now begin to organize for a united South.

"You may be sure that, under present conditions, no man South of the Potomac will be placed on the presidential ticket of either party unless that man is willing to betray his people.

"But, if you organize and let the people know the southern states are not in the bag for either political party, we may have some chance of securing written pledges that will assure some respect for the U. S. Constitution and a greater respect for local government."

That's about it. Byrnes' prescription is that the South find a political alliance within which it may regain a substantial voice in the making of national policy. It seems more likely that the South will go it alone politically than establish the political alliance Byrnes suggested.

South's Natural Policy

The natural policy which the South most urgently desires to establish would relate to the over-all problem of race relations what Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) termed the comingling of the white and Negro races.

Neither the Republican Party nor the non-southern elements of the Democratic Party would be likely to welcome an alliance on those terms. The Negro vote outside the South is too important for either party to dicker with the South on civil rights or on state's rights, either.

U.S. News and World Report estimates in its current issue that four-million Negro voters hold a balance of power in 14 states outside the South. These 14 range from Maryland with 15.6 per cent to California with 4.6 per cent of Negro voters. The others are Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. These 14 states cast a powerhouse of 261 presidential electoral votes. Needed to win: 266!

The Lighter Side—

Ex-Convicts Helped by Wealthy Restaurateur

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—Arthur Maisel, a business man who in 15 years has run a $3,000 ham-and-eggery into a three-state chain of 15 restaurants grossing $10,000,000 annually, says he never has been formally religious and does not attend services.

Yet he likes to think he is helping spread the gospel of good works among human beings.

"I came from positively nowhere in 1942 and started my business with $3,000 capital," he said. "About 1945, I realized that God had been good to me. I had progressed to three restaurants with a gross volume of three and a half million. I looked at what I possessed and what I had started out with, and I began wondering what I could do for other people.

Gives Of Self

"I believe that money is not the only charity. I believe you have to give your time and heart—give of your own self. I looked around and found what seemed to me to be the most neglected charity was help for convicts subject to parole on good behavior but who could not get out unless they could get a job.

"The neglect lay in the fact that most employers who were in a position to help these men had fears. They didn't want to hire ex-convicts. I gave it a lot of thought. I said, most people sin occasionally; all of us err sometime in life.

"I decided I would try to help one-time offenders, men who had made a single error and paid the price to society and were entitled to a second chance. I went to the parole people and they were happy. They said it might help influence other employers start such a program."

That first year Maisel took 15 convicts on parole and got them jobs in his own restaurants or in other businesses or industry. He's been doing it ever since, and he believes he's started a movement that is spreading around the country.

Tells of Inquiries

"Doubtful employers occasionally call me up," he continued. "They ask: 'How's it going? Had any trouble with these men? Is it dangerous? Do you think my wife is right when she says I shouldn't risk it?"

To such queries, he has only favorable reports.

"Ninety-nine per cent of these men have worked out fine as employes, and they're grateful for the opportunity. I know of only one instance where a man used us to get out, and then took off. We take people of all races and beliefs."

Maisel remembers one ex-convict working for him, a boy of 23, who came to him and said he'd fallen in love with a waitress and wanted to get married.

"He wanted to know whether he should tell her his prison record. I sent him to a church for advice. The church called in the girl and told her the entire story. She was shocked, but forgiving.

"They came to me and asked for my blessing. I gave it. And they made me godfather of their first child."

Japanese Theme at Club Reception

"Japan Is A Man's World" according to Mrs. Philip McKenna, who greeted the members of the Monessen Woman's Club and their guests in the Japanese language, when she was presented as guest speaker at the annual president's reception.

The reception was held in the social rooms of the First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon and honored Mrs. Albert Snyder.

Mrs. McKenna is president of the Pittsburgh Guild of Flower Arrangers and an international director of the Pittsburgh Garden Club. She has made two trips to Japan, staying three months to study flower arranging the second time.

Her talk was given against a background brought with her from Japan, and various articles were described and shown to the group. Much of the discussion emphasized the difference in the status of women in Japan and in America. During the social hour Mrs. McKenna greeted the women informally answering questions concerning her travels. She was attired in Japanese costume.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Samuel Pool, vice president and program chairman, who also outlined the activities planned by the club for the year.

The large group of women was received by the club officers, Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Pool, Mrs. William Houy, second vice president; Mrs James Sellew, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Nicholas Polkabla, treasurer.

Mildred Rose, president, was in charge of the business meeting. A donation was made to the Harvest Home. Plans were made for a rummage sale on Oct. 30.

Each member repeated a Bible verse in answering roll call.

In the future the class will meet on the third Thursday of each month. The next meeting will be in the church social rooms with Mrs. Mary Lou Piasecki as hostess.

After the benediction the hostess served luncheon.

Phil Fumble Feeling 'Much Better'

Ol' Phil Fumble is feeling pretty good this week following a record of 12 right and only 3 wrong last week to jump his season percentage to 32 right, 13 wrong for an average of .711. He's anxious to take a crack at this week's games but wonders if there are any left to pick after that "respiratory ailment" makes its rounds. Anyhow, as of now he sees them this way: CHARLEROI at Brownsville; Donora at ERIE CATHEDRAL; WASHINGTON at Monongahela; BELLMAR at German; GLASSPORT at Rostraver; West Newton at TRAFFORD; Fairchance at BENTLEYVILLE; Beth Joint at WAYNESBURG; JEANNETTE at Connellsville; CARMICHAELS at Georges; Dunbar at NORTH UNION; Point Marion at SOUTH UNION; RAMSAY at East Huntingdon; PERRYOPOLIS at Snowden; Canonsburg at CALIFORNIA.

Latest report from Lou Kichinkon, our globe-trotting press pal, states he talked with Joe Marconi, former East Bethlehem, West Virginia U. and now Los Angeles Rams gridder, who sends his best to all valley friends . . . Contributions to the Dick Kadis fund (he's the lad injured a year ago in Geneva-Waynesburg College game) have reached $67,000 . . . Expenses currently run at a rate of $54 a day . . . He still hasn't regained full consciousness although he seems to understand when spoken to but he doesn't eat or talk . . . His mother reports he appears stronger and "smiles more often."

Jackets Play at Uniontown Saturday

Local friends of Johnny Popovich, Waynesburg College grid coach, a former Monessen High ace, can see the Jackets in action against Westminster College Saturday afternoon at Uniontown High's Stadium . . . Kickoff time is set for 2 o'clock . . . Former Greyhounds Ed Galaski and Jimmy Todd perform for the Jacket squad . . . In fact Galaski accounted for 125 of the 131 yards gained passing by the Waynesburgers in last week's tie with Geneva through his excellent pass catching . . . According to fans at that game Waynesburg could have won it except for penalties which stopped them when they were rolling.

Larry Krutko, West Virginia U. fullback, who once starred for Al Cree at Carmichaels before he transferred to Monongahela, has been named co-captain of the West Virginia U. team for this week's Wisconsin game along with Roger Chancey of Pomerroy, O. . . . Krutko, has gained 84 yards rushing in two games for the Mountaineers . . . The generous Milwaukee Braves voted to give outfielder John Demerit a share of the World Series loot if Demerit has a good series. He is substituting for injured Bill Bruton . . . The Yankees did the same for Enos Slaughter. How about the job of managing Fred Haney did with a team with some material? . . . At Pittsburgh they said he didn't have "it". The "it" can now be said to have referred to material not ability.

Should Replay Greyhound - Raider Tilt?

A write-up in a Pittsburgh paper yesterday morning hinted that the Uniontown High gridders who became ill this week apparently contracted the ailment from Monessen High griddors at the game last week. . . . That constitutes an admission that the Monessen players were ill so perhaps the game should be played over or discounted, eh wot? . . . Men of the St. Cajetan Holy Name Society sat in on that Redskin-Steeler game Sunday . . . After the game they came back here to the Church hall to enjoy a spaghetti dinner and make plans for attending another Steeler encounter in the near future . . . Roy DeRocco and Armand Niccolai, 'Hound coach, were in charge of arranging the trip.

Today's Sports Parade—

Shantz to Learn Today If He's at End of Road

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)— The "little man" of the New York Yankees goes out hopefully today to discover whether he finally has reached the end of the long road back.

Five years ago he was the American League's Most Valuable Player. Three years ago they said he was through.

But Bobby Shantz wouldn't quit trying and today he can give the baseball world the full answer as he pitches the second game of the World Series against the Milwaukee Braves.

You can't blame the 32-year-old mite from Pottstown, Pa., if he's a bit shaky as he contemplates walking out in front of 69,000 fans and trying to get a two-game lead for the Yankees in this annual classic.

Shantz Is Wide-Eyed

"I'm a stranger to all of this," Shantz admitted as he sat wide-eyed in the maelstrom of the Yankee dressing room after young Whitey Ford pitched his five-hit 3-1 opening game victory. "I've waited a long time for something like this and even now I can't hardly believe it's happening."

Nervous? He has to be. Because even in 1952 when he led the American League in victories with 24 and was named the Most Valuable Player, Bobby couldn't entertain the idea of this kind of glory. For through that era, six years in all, he played with the listless, going-nowhere Philadelphia Athletics. And, after that, came two more years—sad and bitter years—with the club which was moved to Kansas City and yet still remained the same uninspired Athletics.

They were frustrating years because by now even the lowly A's didn't want him any more.

Something happened to Bobby's arm in 1953 and robbed it of its magic. He won only five that season after his great year before, a season which ended when he was struck by a line drive and suffered a broken wrist. Favoring the wrist, Bobby damaged his arm and by 1954 he was a complete cripple who pitched only eight innings.

Comeback Seemed Unlikely

Nor did it seem that he would be able to make it back. Because in 1955 he won only five against 10 losses and in 1956 fell to a disheartening low of two wins against seven setbacks.

He could have quit then, but the little guy had too much heart. And he got a big lift when the Yankees took him this season and gave him another chance because manager Casey Stengel always carried the memory of his pitching and fielding feats when he "had it."

Shantz didn't have a great season. But there was a great new feeling in being with the Yankees which reacted in his arm as he won 11 against only five defeats.

"Now I get the big chance," he breathed softly as Stengel named him for today's second game. "I just hope I can do it."

Wise old Casey merely smiled. He knows that the little man he rescued from the pitching scrap heap will give it all he's got—and must figure in the depths of one of baseball's best brains that it will be plenty good enough.

FIRST SERIES PITCH — A STRIKE BY FORD — Whitey Ford, New York Yankee pitcher, hurls the first pitch of the 1957 World Series — a strike with the Milwaukee Braves' Red Schoendienst the victim. Game, played in Yankee stadium, was won by the Yanks, 3-1.

Niccolai Schedules Drill for Tomorrow

Coach Armand Niccolai of the Monessen Greyhounds has called a practice session for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for all those not on the "sick list".

Steelers Almost At Full Strength For Browns Game

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers were practically up to full strength today as they conducted light drills in preparation for Saturday night's game with the Cleveland Browns.

The only questionable player, from the health standpoint, was defensive end Bill McPeak, who injured his side in last Sunday's contest with the Washington Redskins. McPeak said he would be ready for at least limited action Saturday, but Coach Buddy Parker overruled him and stated he wasn't sure McPeak would be able to play.

Lou (the Toe) Groza, the Brown's great place kicker, was expected to give the edge to Cleveland, rated a four-point favorite. Groza booted Cleveland to a 6-3 win over New York last Sunday.

The Steelers announced Wednesday that Dick Hughes of Tulsa University had been released to make way for Billy Wells, purchased from Washington. Wells, a hard running halfback, was expected to make a measureable difference in the Steeler offense.

Charleroi Juniors Win Second, 24-6

Washington Junior High dropped a 24-6 decision to Charleroi in a game played at Washington yesterday. The loss evened the team's record at 1-1.

Jimmy White tallied from one yard out to climax a 50-yard Washington drive in the second period. Charleroi scored in each period on a 50-yard end run, 95-yard drive and pass plays covering four and 60 yards.

Tyra With Knicks

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (UP) — Charlie Tyra, 6-foot-8 center from the University of Louisville, has clinched a berth with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Asso. after a strong showing in workouts with the club. Tyra came to the Knicks in a deal that sent veterans Harry Gallatin and Nat (Sweetwater) Clifton to the Detroit Pistons.

Robinson Enlists

CINCINNATI (UP)—Frank Robinson, hard-hitting Cincinnati Redlegs outfielder-first baseman, has enlisted in the Marine Corps active reserve program and has left for six months of training at Parris Island, S.C.

Only Two Big Five Teams to See Action

Only two Big Five teams will see action this week although originally, all were scheduled to play.

The reason for such an odd situation is, naturally, the current "cold" epidemic which has either cancelled or postponed all other games.

For instance, the Monessen-Hempfield game is off for good unless the Spartans stay unbeaten and need points in the WPIAL race. But the Charleroi-Brownsville clash has been reset for Nov. 22, making it a post-season clash.

Two Definitely Set

Definitely scheduled as of this morning were the Monongahela-Washington game and the Donora-Erie Cathedral tilts. Tomorrow night Washington visits Monongahela while Donora travels to Erie.

Former Big Five Conference member Redstone has had its game with Uniontown postponed to join the growing list of "called off" games.

Fill Open Dates

Ellsworth and Bethel, both unaffected by the epidemic, had games with Cecil and Shenango carded but had to postpone the tilts when the latter two schools' forces were depleted by the illness. So, Ellsworth and Bethel decided to fill the open dates on their schedule by playing each other tomorrow night.

Other local area schools such as Bellmar and Rostraver were only slightly affected so Bellmar is planning on playing its game tomorrow night at German and Rostraver will host Glassport. The Leopards had to make an adjustment in having their game with the Glassers moved from tomorrow night until Saturday in hopes the epidemic will subside.

Atom Arcs Post Weld Shop Shutouts

Atom Arc moved up in Weld Shop Bowling League action last night with a sweep of its matches but Lincoln stayed in first with a 2-1 chart.

W. Kimmel and W. Brewer with a 476 and a 470 copped top three-game total honors while A. Drutz had a 182 for single-game high. Other top high rollers were J. Lenio, G. Senitta, J. Komondor and W. Brewer.

Standings — Lincoln 9-3, Williams 8-4, Atom Arc 8-4, Eutectic 6-6, M. Service 4-8 and American Torch 1-11.

"Can I borrow your shoes, Pop? I cover more ground in them!"

Fox Chapel Pro Tri-State Prexy

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Paul (Toots) Erath of Fox Chapel, Pa., was re-elected president Monday of the Tri-State Professional Golfers Assn. while Art Tucke, Pittsburgh, and Johnny Darak, Aliquippa, Pa., were selected vice presidents.

Ray Cerar, Alcoma, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Chuck Onoretta, Weirton, W. Va., was named to replace Rut Coffey, of Moundsville, W. Va., as the Mountain state representative.

Vernon, Marion Juniors to Play

Coach Kenny Clark's Junior High eleven will travel to Fallowfield Township this afternoon to battle Coach Johnny Shell's eleven.

About 13 of the Vernon lads are on the sick list but Clark said he figures he has enough to play so he thought it best to play the game so as not to "jam the schedule" at the end of the season.

The Rostraver-South Huntingdon Junior High clash has been postponed but Marion will battle Perry today.

'Too Old' Ex-GI to Start Against Army for Penn State on Saturday

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —A former GI who was persuaded to play football over his protests that he was "too old" will start at left halfback for Penn State Saturday against Army.

Dave Kasperian, a 25-year-old from Worcester, Mass., won the starting assignment over Bruce Gilmore because of his performance in the Nittany Lions' 19-14 victory over Penn last Saturday.

"Dave's basic talents may be less than Gilmore's but he seems to do more with what he has," Coach Rip Engle said. "He has more determination than most players because of his age."

Against Penn, the stocky 185-pound Kasperian was the leading ground gainer with 86 yards. Engle hopes he will repeat against the Cadets.

Kasperian enrolled in a business administration course at Penn State two years ago after his discharge from service. He was on the campus several weeks before Engle learned of his presence.

"There's a boy from Worcester who remembers you when you coached at Brown," a student told Engle. "You might take a look at him."

Believed Too Old

Engle looked up Kasperian and persuaded him to try out for the freshman squad.

Kasperian agreed but he didn't take the game seriously because he thought he was too old for college ball. He preferred to center his attention on his studies.

However, freshman coach Earl Bruce spotted ability and advised Engle that Kasperian "was worth working with." Engle invited Kasperian to spring practice the next year.

"At first he looked like a good kid to have around, someone who could help us once in a while," an athletic official said. "Then last spring he was tremendous in practice. Gilmore was late reporting for drills because he had been wrestling and Dave took over the left halfback spot. He's only 5-foot-9 and doesn't have the speed or experience that Gilmore has but he's a hard runner to bring down."

Fears Being Out-Platooned

Engle, who has been studying movies of the Penn game, said he feared Army "will out-platoon us."

"Coach (Earl) Blaik used four teams in beating Nebraska last Saturday," Engle said. "We were lucky to reach the second team against Penn. These pictures convince me our starters will have to stay longer."

Last season the Army scored twice in the first period but had to fight off a Penn State rally to save a 14-7 victory. The Lions scored on a 35-yard march in the final period. Gilmore was on his way with what appeared to be a 94-yard touchdown run when Bob Kyasky caught him from behind on the Army 40.

Billing Bear Wins Rolling Rock Feature

LIGONIER, Pa. (UP)—Billing Bear, owned by Mrs. C. S. May of Ligonier, won the featured $2,500 Rolling Rock Hunt Cup Wednesday at the 20th annual running of the Rolling Rock races.

The bay gelding repeated its winning time of four minutes and 14 seconds that gave it the laurels last year.

Billing Bear, only horse to win the cup twice, outdistanced Montadet in the stretch to win over the two-mile brush course. Out of Reach was third.

Cherwell, owned by W.C. Robinson Jr. of Pittsburgh, won the A.M. Byers III Cup for the second consecutive year. Jockey Levi Keen set a record of 5:13.3 for the 2½ miles over timber.

Lucky Trine, owned by F.E. Divon of Philadelphia, won the afternoon opening event of 1¾ miles over hurdles. Jockey H. Thatcher booted home the winner in 3.51.3.

Easy Stages, owned by the Llangollen Farm, led all the way to win the $1,500 Malcolm McGiffin Cup, a 1½ mile event over hurdles.

Saint II won the fifth and final event, worth $600.

The annual charity event for the Industrial Home for Crippled Children will conclude Saturday with the running of the International Gold Cup race.

Cards, Braves Interested in Robin Roberts

NEW YORK (UP)—Frank Lane said today the Cardinals are "definitely interested" in obtaining Robin Roberts but there were indications St. Louis might have to outbid the National League champion Milwaukee Braves.

Lane refused to commit himself on which players he might offer the Phillies, but the Braves apparently are ready to give up a pitcher plus infielder Felix Mantilla and catcher Carl Sawatski if they can swing the deal.

"I still consider Roberts a mighty fine pitcher even though he lost 22 games this year," Lane said. "He's the kind of competitor who could come right back and win 15 or 18 next season."

Roy Hamey, general manager of the Phillies, also thinks along Lane's lines in that respect and thus far has shown no indication he is ready to peddle the 31-year-old right hander, who won 20 or more games every season from 1950 through 1955.

The Phillies, however, are known to be in the market for right-handed power hitters and the Cards might be induced to part with Ken Boyer.

Salay Rolls 529, Bixsey 524 in OH

Joe Salay of the Whitehouse team rolled a 529 three-game high in the Open Hearth League last night but was hard-pressed for top honors by Chuck Bixsey of Weddell who had a 524. Bixsey took the single game honors with a 211.

Whitehouse, Balmers and Weddell won the matches with the standings now showing: Weddell 10-5; Balmers 8-6; Maykovich 8-7; Whitehouse 7-8; Minardi 6-9; Van Marter 5-10.

Bellmar - Uhlan Contest One of Few Tilts Not Postponed in Valley; One 'Cane Ill

"They're big, they're rugged and they're experienced," that's the word from Bellmar Coach Bap Manzini on his team's next foe German Township.

The Hurricanes travel to McClellandtown for a battle with the Uhlans tomorrow night in the fourth test of the season for the 'Canes, taking a 2-1 record with them.

Bellmar owns wins over Centerville (6-0) and Penn Joint (19-6) while losing to Perryopolis (26-6). German, meanwhile has dropped two games, to rough Uniontown in the opener (26-0), and to Scott Township (13-6).

Coach Lou Rozzi of German isn't used to losing two games in succession so the Bellmar mentor can't be blamed for being somewhat skeptical about tomorrow night's clash.

Swift Halfbacks

"They have a couple of halfbacks named Sims and Bill Kutland, who can run like the wind," says Manzini, "Plus six veterans on the line back from last year's team.". . . .and that was a good squad last season."

Meanwhile, Manzini is having troubles in the department where he can least afford to experience difficulties, namely the tackle department, where big-250-pound Gary Grant is sidelined with a cold. Manzini explains that he has only three experienced tackles in Ron Schmidt, Grand and Bill Barker and the loss of one means trouble.

Except for Ron Coates starting at quarterback in place of Larry Petras, Manzini plans no lineup changes for the Uhlans.

"Offensively we'll start as we have all season except on defense will replace Cranford and Kubin at the ends.

As to the "respiratory ailment" epidemic sweeping the valley, Manzini said he was keeping his fingers crossed for so far only one player (Grant) has been sidelined from the entire Bellmar squad.

"We're in for a rough time Friday night but we'll be in there giving those guys a battle," Manzini added.

Five 'Over-500' Games in GP Loop

Five over-500 total three-games and four over-200 single games were rolled in the Grand Parlor City League last night as Cousins and the Elks topped the Aquarium and the Cro-Ams.

Tom Sassak, Charles Daugherty, Cee Brown, Leo Lewitsky, Phil LaPresti shared the honors with Sassak rolling a 560 three-game total.

LaPresti had the single game honor of 214. James Salay was right behind the leaders with a 185-484 card.

Standings — Cousins 8-1, Elks 5-4, Cro-Ams 4-5 and Aquarium 1-8.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Times to Look Up

In today's drawing the player should be turning his head to look out and see where his shot is going. He's well along into his follow-through by now. Keeping his head down will hamper him in pivoting his shoulders in his follow-through.

As you begin to groove your golf swing, you will automatically turn your head after striking the ball. It will be a natural movement, however, and not a planned one.

As your shoulders continue to pivot to the left after the ball is hit, your head should turn easily in the same direction. Don't force it to continue looking down at this point.

Odds-makers Predict Yank Sweep After Spahn's 3-1 Opener Loss

By LEO H. PETERSON

NEW YORK (UP) — The odds-makers hung the spectre of a four-game sweep over the Milwaukee Braves today when Casey Stengel sent Bobby Shantz, a carbon-copy of first-game victor Whitey Ford, out in an attempt to make it two straight for the New York Yankees in the 1957 World Series.

Broadway odds-makers quoted the defending world champions, 3-1 victors in Wednesday's opener, as 6-5 to win the second game, 13-5 to take the Series and only 5-1 to wrap it up in four games. These odds reflected the general feeling that the Yankees cleared the way to their seventh world championship in nine years under Stengel when they made 36-year-old star Warren Spahn a loser in the opener.

Milwaukee manager Fred Haney, disappointed but far from discouraged by the first-game defeat, named ex-Yankee farmhand Lew Burdette to hurl the second game and "get the Braves even." Burdette posted a 17-9 record during the regular National League season and will be making his first World Series appearance.

Haney is expected to stand pat with the solid right-handed hitting order that managed only five hits off Ford but Stengel was prepared to hit the Braves with his left-handed-hitting platoon. This probably means Harry Simpson at first base in place of the injured Bill Skowron and Jerry Lumpe at third in place of Andy Carey, with Tony Kubek remaining in left field.

Expect Pleasant Weather

Another crowd of about 69,000 was expected to be blessed with the "Indian summer" temperatures that marked the opener before the teams take America's greatest sports show on the road. Tomorrow is an off-day of travel with the third, fourth and fifth games scheduled for County Stadium, Milwaukee, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The sixth and seventh, if necessary, will be played at Yankee Stadium.

In Shantz, Stengel is sending the Yankees' Cinderella Kid of 1957 out on his first World Series assignment in a career that reached a peak when he had a 24-7 record and was named the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1952.

Burdette, 30, is the most controversial pitcher in baseball because nobody seems to be sure whether or not he actually employs the outlawed spitball. Known as a "cute workman," Burdette keeps all his stuff low.

A native of Nitro, W. Va., Burdette was a highly-respected Yankee farmhand when the world champions decided they needed late-season veteran pitching to wrap up the 1951 American League pennant. For this reason alone, they were persuaded to include Lew in a deal for Johnny Sain—a transaction that paid off for the Yankees inasmuch as Sain helped them to the pennant but that hurt them inasmuch as they lost a first class young pitcher.

Dope Stood Up

Advance dope on a World Series probably never stood up better than in Wednesday's opener when the Yankees displayed their all-around resourcefulness and had a pitcher to control the Braves' power.

Ford and Spahn matched zeroes until the last of the fifth when Gerry Coleman, one of Stengel's platooners, led off with a single, advanced to third on two infield outs and scored the first run of the game when Hank Bauer pickled Spahn's first pitch up the right center field alley for a double.

Ford started and finished strong but he seemed to be laboring in the middle innings when he gave the Braves three chances to score.

But he threw a double play ball to Joe Adcock to choke off the first threat in the fourth, retired Red Schoendienst with two on and two out in the fifth and stopped Hank Aaron, Adcock and Andy Pafko in the sixth after walking Johnny Logan and Ed Mathews.

The Braves finally nudged Ford for their run in the seventh when Schoendienst singled home Wes Covington, who had doubled, with two out. But by then, the Yankees had added two more runs on sixth-inning singles by Elston Howard and Andy Carey, a walk and Coleman's suicide-squeeze sacrifice bunt.

The victory was the fifth of Ford's World Series career and made him an obvious choice to pitch either the fifth or sixth games. Spahn can be expected to come back in the fourth game. If the Braves are trailing, and undoubtedly will start three games if the series goes the distance.

NEWSPAPERBOYS HONOR RIZZUTO — Three Washington, D. C., newsboys recently presented a Treasure Department citation to Phil Rizzuto, former Yankee shortstop and all-time baseball great, for his work in boys' sports and the U. S. Savings Bonds program. Present for the ceremony were Billy Fallon, Fred Dunn and Tommy Callahan, the newsboys; Rizzuto and E. D. Northup, of the Savings Bonds Division. (Left to right above.)

Brooklyn Seen Leaving New York

NEW YORK (UP) — President Warren Giles of the National League confirmed today that he believes the Dodgers will leave New York, but denied that he said the league will have a replacement for them in New York in 1958.

"I guess what I meant to say was that there will be a National League club in New York eventually," he said. "I do not believe there will be a National League club in New York in 1958."

Two experienced sports reporters said Giles, in New York for the World Series, told them that he was convinced the Dodgers would be in Los Angeles in 1958, but that he also was sure that his league would still be represented in New York.

Ford On Way to Becoming Top Series Pitcher

NEW YORK (UP) — Whitey Ford, the little southpaw who pitches the big games for the New York Yankees, seems to have a clear path today toward becoming the most successful World Series pitcher of all time.

The 28-year-old Ford's 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves in Wednesday's 1957 opener marked his fifth triumph in a Series career dating back to his rookie campaign in 1950. He is only two victories behind the Series mark held jointly by ex-Yankee heroes Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds and should draw six to eight more starting shots before he hangs up his glove.

Whitey can expect to pick up at least one, and perhaps two more starts, in the current Series. And, unless the Yankees suddenly lose their magic touch, he can expect Series starts in four or five of the next eight years.

Ford may be one of the most under-rated pitchers in baseball because he never has acquired that well-known badge of the first-class hurler—a 20-victory season. The big reasons for this, however, are that the Yankees like to spread the work around among their pitchers more than most teams find possible and that Whitey suffered a sore arm at the beginning of the current season.

"I hope I never have to go through that again," he said. "I laid awake nights wondering whether I'd feel sore when I pitched the next day. I looked in the mirror and said, 'You could be through.' But I'm okay again now and I hope I've shaken those miseries forever."

With a six-year record of 91 victories and 33 losses Ford is the most successful pitcher in the majors, percentagewise (.734).

Papantonakis High In GAPA League

George Papantonakis rolled a 215 and a 514 to top all bowlers in the GAPA League last night. Close behind was Ted Apodiakos with a 186 and a 496.

Other ace point-makers were Chuck Miller, Chuck Marsich, Coon Ranallo, and Augie Grillo.

Winners last night in team play were the Zeus and Spartans.

Standings — Spartans 10-2, Zeus 8-4, Thor 6-6, Apollo 0-12.

Ford Credits Scouts With Fine 'Book' on Braves for Victory

By WHITEY FORD
As Told To The United Press

NEW YORK (UP) — Give our scouts a lot of the credit. They sure brought us back a mighty fine "book" on the Braves.

Two of Milwaukee's left-handed hitters, Eddie Mathews and Wes Covington, though, are a whole lot better than I thought. Especially Mathews.

He didn't get any hits off me but he's got an eye like Ted Williams up there at the plate. He won't swing at a ball if it's a hair-line of the strike zone.

Frankly, I thought the Braves' hitters would be easier to deal with than the Dodgers were in the past. But after facing them, I'm not so sure. Here I had always figured Mathews was some wild-swinging slugger, always going for the fences. But that's not the case at all.

My curve ball was my "money pitch" today. I relied on it especially often during the last four innings.

From the stands it may have looked as if I was a little wild. I know I walked four men, two of them in the sixth. But that was only because I was trying to be too careful.

Those two walks in the sixth — one to Johnny Logan and the other to Mathews—put me in a bit of a hole and I guess Casey Stengel was concerned when I ran the count to 2-and-1 on Andy Pafko with two out.

He came out of the dugout and told me not to get careless with Pafko. He said he didn't want me to give him a good ball to hit because first base was open and a left-handed hitter, Wes Covington, was due up next. Casey said he didn't care if I walked Pafko. I knew that myself, though, even before he came out to tell me.

You don't read too much about out scouts who go out and send us back reports on the Milwaukee hitters. Johnny Neun and Bill Skiff did it this year and believe me, they came back with the right dope.

Things like that make it easier for a pitcher.

But I still can't get over that Mathews. He reminds me of a hawk up there at the plate.

DiGregorio, Slebodnik High in Fabric Loop

A sparkling 532 by D. Perry and a 527 by Delpho DiGregoria for three games plus a 212 single-game mark by Delpho DeGregorio and John Slebodnick highlighted Fabric Bowling League action last night. Other top scorers were J. Loreznini, J. Polinchak and N. Smarilli.

The winners were Steelers, Bears, and Rams.

Big Ten Teams Setting Pace in All Major Gridiron Departments

NEW YORK (UP)—It's hard to get ahead of Big Ten football teams even on those rare week ends when they lose half their games.

That's the statistical story of the NCAA produced today in releasing its first major - college team figures for the new season.

Although Big Ten teams lost as many games as they won while opening their campaigns last week end, they led every department of offense, defense and kicking.

The NCAA's Service Bureau said no conference previously had enjoyed such a monopoly during the 21 years they have been compiling statistics.

Iowa ran and passed for 648 yards during its 70-14 conquest of Utah State to lead the major colleges in total offense.

Iowa collected 328 of its yards against Utah State in the air and that figure put the defending Big Ten champions first in forward passing. Iowa also led in rushing defense after holding Utah State to a net loss of six yards on the ground.

Michigan State collected 426 yards by rushing and a total of 555 while whipping Indiana, 54-0. This spree put Michigan State on top in rushing and second to Iowa in total offense. Michigan State also won first place in total defense by allowing Indiana to gain a total of just 80 yards.

Ohio State took first place in pass defense but probably won't boast about it. Ohio State is the only major college that hasn't allowed an air yard but Texas Christian only tried three passes during its 18-14 upset of the Big Ten team.

Minnesota leads in punting with a 50-yard average. The team has punted only once. That's all the kicking the Gophers needed while crushing Washington, 46-7.

In individual statistics, Bob Winters of Utah State led in total offense with a net of 352 yards and in passing with 373 yards and 28 completions for two games. Don Perkins of New Mexico led in rushing with 245 yards for two games. Jerry Mertens of Drake and Fred Dugan of Dayton led in passes caught with 11 each. Mertens led in pass-receiving yardage with 224.

Panthers Arrive In LA for Drills

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The Pitt Panthers were due to arrive here today for final drill sessions for their game Friday night with Southern California.

The Pitt team is a slim one and one-half point favorite in the contest to be played in the Coliseum before an anticipated crowd of 40,000.

California coach Don Clark was depending heavily on his star punter, quarterback Jim Conroy, to give his team an edge in the game. Conroy, ranked fifth nationally as a booter, has averaged 46 yards per punt. Pitt kicker Bob Stark is averaging 36 yards.

In a game of two relatively slow moving teams, punting can make a big difference.

Dulles to Meet With Gromyko

WASHINGTON (UP —Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will attempt to smoke out Soviet intentions on disarmament and the Middle East when he confers this week end with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Administration officials said today the two topics head the list of world issues expected to come up at the Dulles-Gromyko meeting.

The State Department announced Wednesday night Dulles had invited Gromyko to come to Washington Saturday afternoon for an "exchange of views on various international issues of concern to both the United States and the USSR."

At Dulles' Home

The meeting will be held at Dulles' home on the edge of mansion-lined Rock Creek Park. An aide said Dulles "likes to stay home and work on Saturdays" so he decided to have the dour Russian visit him there.

State Department officials said no international emergency prompted Dulles' invitation. They also said Dulles does not have any new disarmament or Mideast peace plans to propose to Gromyko.

Dulles' idea, officials said, is to find out whether the Soviets are as tough as they sound on disarmament, the Middle East, Germany and other important issues long deadlocked between East and West.

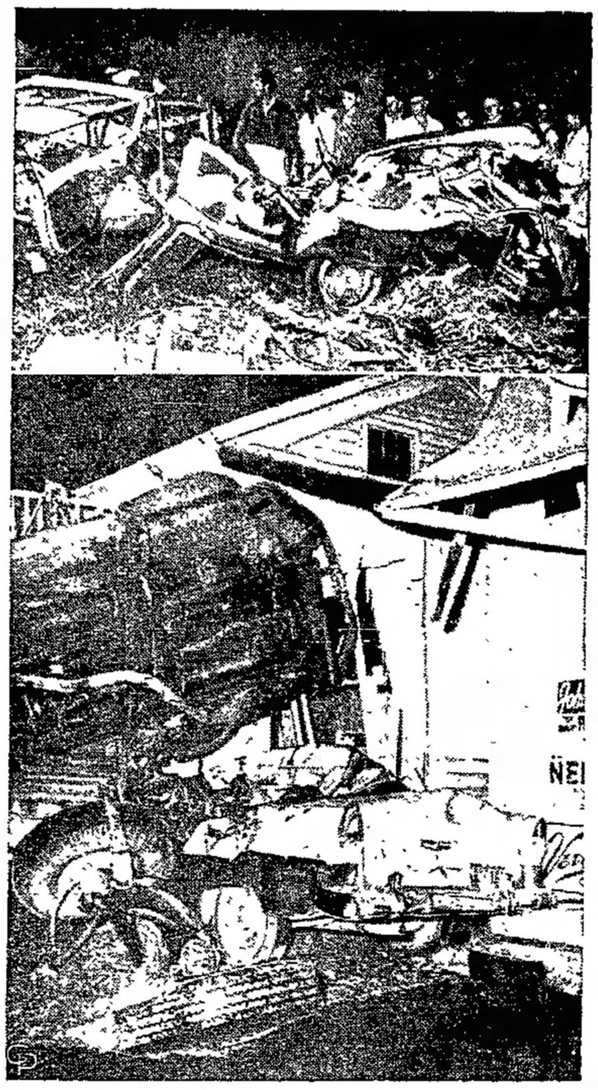
Dulles has told friends recently he doubts talks with the Russians would do any good except possibly on disarmament.

Arms Feeling Optimistic

The feeling persists in official quarters here that the Russians may yet agree to something in the way of disarmament. They thought a hint of this was given in a comment Sept. 28 in New York by Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy to Gromyko. Kuznetsov told a news conference at the U.N. Moscow might look with favor on a new conference of national leaders with disarmament as the principal topic.

Dulles also has a personal reason for wanting to sit down with Gromyko. It is known Dulles asked American intelligence agencies some time ago to try to find out just who is running Soviet foreign policy. Now he will get his chance to try. He has some suspicion the former British diplomats Donald Maclean and Guy Burgess, who fled Britain for Russia, are working in the Soviet foreign office.

The United States bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark during World War I as a safeguard against German occupation. Purchase price was $25 million.



THREE KILLED IN THIS ONE — The station wagon (upper) is a total wreck in this smashup, which took the lives of Mrs. Juliana Nickles, 32, and daughters, Susan, 10, and Juliana, 9, near Ravenna, O. It was rammed broadside by a potato truck which then careened into a gasoline pump and climbed atop another car (lower). Two children in the other car were uninjured. Driver of the truck, Logan Bush, Jr., 34, Marion, Va., was arrested.

Governor in Chicago For Special Parley

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader went to Chicago today to attend a two-day session of the Joint Federal-State Action Committee on Intergovernmental Relations.

The governor said before his departure he was "going directly to local government officials" to get their opinions on proposals that certain federal programs be shifted to the states."

Leader and nine other governors, together with a number of President Eisenhower's top advisors, are on the committee.

"I feel it is imperative that this committee have the benefit of a cross section of the views of local officials," Leader said. "The closer we get to the grass roots, the better for all of us. In fact, I emphatically hope that some later meetings of the committee will include responsible spokesmen of local government — city and county — for their viewpoint clearly is essential to any sensible realignment of governmental functions."

'Angler' Backlash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP) — Herbert H. Fisher admitted to police that he made a false driver's license application using the name and address of Herbert H. Fischer, which he found listed in the phone book. Fisher's plan backfired when the Bureau of Motor Vehicles checked with Fischer, a city policeman.

More French Workers Go on Strike Today

PARIS (UP)—Nearly two million more French workers went on strike today, lending new urgency to President Rene Coty's efforts to select a premier before economic chaos strengthens the "draft De Gaulle" movement.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, wartime leader of the Free French who is regarded by many Frenchmen as their liberator, slipped into town from his Lorraine Province retreat to keep in closer touch with the situation.

Coty was reported to be considering former premiers Guy Mollet and Rene Pleven, but before calling in any prospective premier Coty was seeing Jacques Soustelle, the 45-year-old Gaullist who helped bring down the government of Premier Maurice Bourges - Maunoury.

Mollet's Socialists, infuriated by Soustelle's successful campaign against the Bourges - Maunoury plan for giving home rule to Algeria, already have urged Coty to "just let" Soustelle try to form a cabinet.

Coty's efforts were held under the pressure of widespread labor agitation. More than 1,200,000 metal workers walked out in shipyards and mechanical industries and were joined by 700,000 workers in the building trade.

The strikes ranged from 2 to 24 hours. Police stood by to cope with possible disturbances in a number of industrial districts, primarily Nante and St. Nazaire, where trade unions announced protest rallies and marches against the wage - freeze policy still in effect.

In addition farmers were still refusing to bring food to market in protest against frozen prices.

Leader Boomed For Nomination To U. S. Senate

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader was boomed for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator at a dinner meeting of Dauphin County Democrats Wednesday night.

The county organization kicked off its 1957 municipal election campaign at the rally, and heard Patrick E. Kerwin, Lykens, Dauphin County political leader, say that "we will make him (Leader) the next U.S. senator from Pennsylvania."

U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark Jr. (D-Pa.) said at a news conference the governor is his "first choice" for the nomination, and he favored Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia for the governorship in the 1958 statewide elections.

Leader told the $25-a-plate diners Dauphin County will get nearly 23 million dollars in new and improved highways from his administration, in addition to other projects. He said some persons would call this "pork barrel" tactics, but other things the Democrats can do to stay in power include "honesty, efficiency and more and better service."

Clark charged the Eisenhower administration has failed to curb inflation and said this was due in part to "the ability of big business to administer prices."

Volcanic Island Being Born in Sea Near Azores

ANGRA DO HEROISMO, Azores (UP)—A volcanic island was being born in the sea near here today to the accompaniment of violent explosions and the prayers of frightened people.

The island, shrouded in whitish yellow volcanic ash and sulphurous fumes, has risen about 120 feet above the sea and is nearly 1,000 feet in diameter. Each hour its size increases. The sea there is 40 fathoms deep.

The island is 70 miles west of Angra Do Heroismo and only a few hundred yards from Faial Island, whose 25,000 residents fear they will suffer the fate that befell Pompeii.

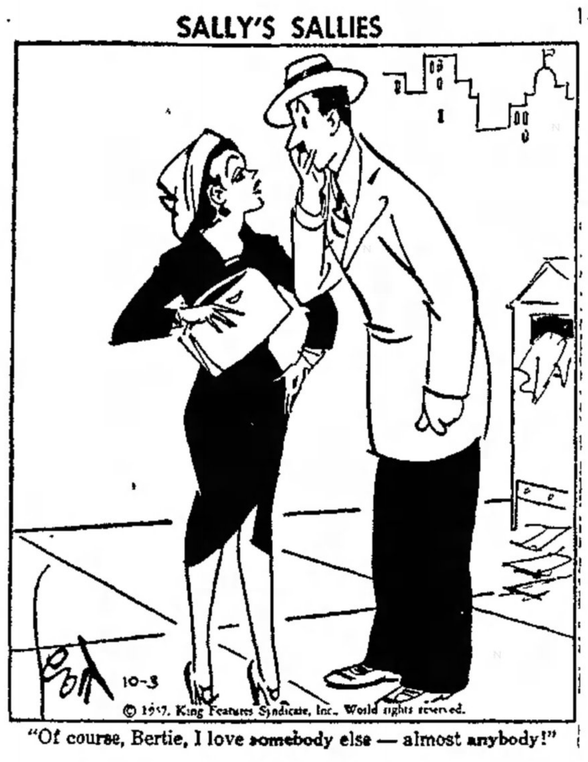
Portugal invited scientists from all over the world to view the spectacle as part of the International Geophysical Year. Planeloads of Portuguese scientists were en route and a Russian vessel with scientific equipment radioed it too was en route to Faial.

Man Is Burned to Death in Fuel Test

ELMIRA, N.Y. (UP)—Edward A. Bowen Jr., 38, of Sayre, Bradford County, Pa. died Wednesday of burns suffered in a fuel test explosion.

Police said Bowen was burned Tuesday while testing a "kerosene like" fuel at the Eclipse Machine Division of the Bendix Aviation Corp. in Elmira Heights.

SALLY'S SALLIES



"Of course, Bertie, I love somebody else — almost anybody!"

Blockade Threatens To Starve Rebels

SAN MARINO (UP)—A total blockade of this tiny state by Italian troops threatened today to starve the Communists out of the government palace.

Communist leaders defied the threat and said they would not submit to a provisional government set up in a half-built factory by Christian Democrats.

"We will die here rather than give up our ground," a Red spokesman said.

This 38-square-mile republic, the world's oldest, is situated near the Adriatic Sea completely within Italy. It depends on food, manufactured goods and a $240,000 annual subsidy from Italy for survival.

When the Christian Democrats declared an independent government Tuesday and both sides started arming their followers, Italy rushed federal police to seal off the border and contain any eruption of civil war.

The Christian Democrats were in a more strategic position to get supplies, though. Their headquarters are only 50 yards from the border—the Communist-held palace is six miles from it.

Bushel to Stay

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department has decided to stick to the old bushel basket, at least for next year. The government decided to drop an economy plan to measure its grain operations by hundredweights after a group of grain traders protested the move would cause "chaos" in their industry.

Coffee Prices Lowered Today

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (UP)—General Foods Corp. and Standard Brands Inc., leading coffee roasters, today lowered the prices on their regular ground coffees from two to three cents a pound.

General Foods cut its regular ground Maxwell House and Sanka coffees three cents a pound at the wholesale level. It also reduced its regular Yuban and Bliss coffees two cents a pound.

Standard Brands lowered the wholesale price of its regular ground Chase Saborn coffee three cents a pound at wholesale.

Westinghouse to Build Big Glassport Plant

Westinghouse Electric Corp. announced plans today for the construction of a new plant at Glassport for its manufacturing and repair division.

W. T. Pitzer, regional manager of the division, said construction of the new building should begin about December 1 and should be completed during the last quarter of 1958.

The new plant will be one of the largest of its type in the country and will be used to service and repair electrical and mechanical apparatus of industries in the Tri-State area that includes Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio, he said. The expansion program became necessary as a result of increased business activity and physical size of equipment to be repaired.

R. L. Bogardus, plant manager of repair operations, and a veteran of 23 years with Westinghouse, will be manager of the new plant.

The new building will be of brick and steel construction, will house approximately 60,000 square feet of space and will have a 100-ton crane capacity, the Westinghouse executive said.

Adjoining the plant will be a one-story office building. Current plans call for the employment of about 100 persons there with a predicted payroll of 150 in three years.

The Glassport site is being purchased from the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, which formerly used the land for a roundhouse location. It is at the corner of Ohio Ave. and Broadway alongside the Glassport High School athletic field.

Bogardus joined Westinghouse in 1933 at Detroit. In his 23 years with the company, he has held positions in Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Married and the father of two children, he lives at 421 Janice Dr., Penn Twp. Pittsburgh 35.

New Blast of Cold Air in Northern Rockies

By UNITED PRESS

A new blast of cold air is expected to spread snow over portions of the northern plains and northern Rockies today, but continued clear and balmy weather was seen in the East for the second game of the World Series.

The cold, Canadian air swept into the Northwest Wednesday night, dropping temperatures an average of 20 to 15 degrees. The cold air ranged from the Washington and Oregon coasts east to Montana.

Nearly one-half inch of rain accompanied the cold air advance in Grangeville, Idaho, and Baker, Ore., and snow fell at Mullen Pass, Idaho, during the night as readings dipped below freezing.

The cooler weather is expected to push east into the Dakotas today with the pattern of scattered showers changing to snow in parts of the northern plains and Rockies.

Degree of Guilt Decision in Slaying of Mother

BROOKVILLE, Pa. (UP)—Judge Robert M. Morris is expected to decide by next week the degree of guilt of a 16-year-old Jefferson County high school student who shot his mother to death last Dec. 1.

Morris heard testimony in the case of Samuel T. Lavella Wednesday. The boy pleaded guilty Sept. 2 to a general charge of murder.

"I got mad about her nagging. I wanted to scare her," the youth told the court.

Dr. Robert Dickinson, a Ridgway psychiatrist, testified a "personality trait disturbance" made it difficult for the boy to show feeling. "He has no outlet for emotion," he said.

The boy, however, is "not insane," he added.

Dist. Atty. William McKnight did not press for a first degree murder sentence. He indicated he might accept a second degree murder penalty, carrying a maximum sentence of 20 years.

Chief defense counsel Ben Coppolo pleaded for leniency. He presented a petition signed by 300 neighbors asking clemency. The boy's father also pleaded for his son.

"I'm 100 per cent behind Samuel," the father told the court.

The proceeding was the first in the history of Jefferson County courts to be covered by a newspaper photographer.

Morris permitted a representative of the Punxsutawney Spirit to take pictures for use by other publications on a pool basis.

Philip Needs More Official Duties To Keep Him Out of Other Affairs

(Fourth of Five Dispatches)

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UP) — There are times when Britain's Old Guard must wish it had not opposed the title of prince consort as premature for the husband of Queen Elizabeth II.

This would have given him more to do with the office of the sovereign and less time for probing into other affairs.

His present situation is certainly not completely satisfactory to him. He cannot be in the room when his wife discusses official business with one of her ministers. His chair is taken from the dais at investitures and replaced when the ceremony is over. He cannot read official dispatches. There is a blank wall beyond which his active mind must not range.

So, like the hercules with club on his coat of arms, he has lashed about in those areas in which he can operate.

Talks of Science

He astonished the British Association for the Advancement of Science in 1951 in a presidential address in which he urged scientists not to be timid. He referred to Kippin's silicon chemistry, Lanchester's vortex theory and the X-ray spectrum. He knew what he was talking about, too.

Philip's zest for life is in the Mountbatten tradition.

He drives automobiles fast even recklessly, some think. He learned to fly a plane, a glider and a helicopter and one of his more recent crazes is water skiing. In polo his falls from horses are becoming as famous as were those of the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales.

There was inside palace opposition to Philip's helicopter venture but he got his way, had the craft landed on the grounds of Buckingham Palace and made a point of coming low enough to wave to the crowds at the gate.

Daring In The Air

Last July he flew in a dual control glider and learned to handle it himself in half the usual time. His instructor said that Philip immediately wanted to "beat up" the airfield — that is, zoom down low over it.

His automobile record goes something like this: He overturned in a fast sports car in October 1947; collided with a taxi in February 1948; collided with another taxi in 1956 and last June he crashed into a small passenger car. No one was hurt. The driver of the other car rushed around to complain about his dented fender. caught a sight of the passenger and driver—the Queen was inside—opened his mouth and said not a word.

This last collision was somewhat embarrassing since it happened only a few hours after Philip had urged motoring organizations at a luncheon meeting to become better drivers. Bystanders at the crash reported the duke called out "All my fault." He is covered by insurance.

His polo record is not much better, or perhaps it is worse. He is a three goal handicap man, the biggest box office draw in British polo. Once nearly 10,000 people crowded Winsor Great Park to see him play.

Goal Post Collision

Last July he twice collided with the papier mache goal posts and in one fall his horse nearly rolled on him. The Queen was watching this match and she leaped to her feet, fingers at her throat.

On another occasion the Duke cut his chin and later he had to be treated by a physiotherapist for neck muscles strained in a fall. There were some suggestions Philip ought to take it easy but the Sunday Pictorial came to his defense and denounced the "dismal jimmys who are trying to wrap the duke in cotton wool."

He is also an ardent yachtsman and recently took Charles sailing on a small boat through rough seas.

One of his greatest annoyances in this active life is the constant presence of reporters and photographers. While sailing with Charles at the Cowed Regetta, he shouted to photographers:

"I won't come here next year if this is going on all the time. I might as well shut myself up at home."

Warren Oil Co. Hit by Blaze; $150,000 Damage

WARREN, Pa. (UP—A West Penn Oil Co. processing plant was destroyed Wednesday in an explosion and fire which made a roaring furnace of a two and one-half acre field containing 30 storage tanks.

The fire leveled the plant's main building and set ablaze upwards of 500,000 gallons of refined oil.

Plant supervisor John Culbertson inhaled an overdose of smoke as he attempted to shut off machinery. Nine other workers escaped without injury.

Firemen battled the blaze for four hours before gaining the upper hand.

E. C. Miller, vice president, said he was unable to estimate immediately the value of the lost oil. Damage to the plant alone, however, was set at more than $150,000 by officials.

The plant produced lubricating and industrial oils and other products.

Miller said the blaze erupted about 2:15 p.m., e.d.t., in a packaging unit, spread quickly through the plant and mushroomed with a roar to nearby storage tanks.

Two of the tanks, each containing 5,000 gallons of oil, exploded.

Firemen played hoses on two other tanks containing a highly volatile mixture of chemicals and oil and prevented them from exploding.

Gold-laden Plane Crashes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP) — A gold laden Lebanese airliner burst into flames shortly after takeoff from Beirut today and fell into the Mediterranean, killing the 28 persons aboard.

The plane, a twin - engine C46, was en route to the oil-rich Arab state of Kuwait on the Persian Gulf. Four Britons were reported among the victims.

Unofficial reports said the airliner was carrying 15 boxes of gold ingots to the British protectorate. Authorities refused to estimate the value of the shipment.

Airport sources said the plane's two engines failed one after the other and "exploded" and that the aircraft was blazing when it crashed into the Mediterranean.

Townsend Co. Sales Increase

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa. (UP) — Townsend Co., producer of cold formed parts, announced today a development program aimed at increasing annual sales 30 million dollars by 1962.

F. R. Dickenson, Townsend president, disclosed the program in the firm's annual report.

The report showed sales for the fiscal year ended June 30 rose to $16,770,376 from $15,648,296 the previous year. Net profits for the year were $544,750, equal to $2.08 per share. A year ago net profits amounted to $252,651, or 98 cents a share.

Dickenson said the improved record was partly a result of increased sales of subsidiary and affiliated companies in the Midwest and on the West Coast.

Low Bidders for School Building

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Public School Building Authority has received unofficial low bids totaling $277,547 for construction of an elementary school building in Bradenville, Westmoreland County.

Peter Bongianino & Son, Blairsville, submitted an unofficial $.82,558 low bid for general construction work. Other bids were $34,989, William O. Armitage, Apollo, heating; $41,800, Kauchack Brothers, Inc., Wilmerding, plumbing, and $18,200, McElroy & Fenton, Latrobe, electrical work.

Wholesale Food Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UP)—The Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index recorded its third consecutive sharp decline in the week ended Oct. 1, and stands at the lowest level since May 28, the statistical agency reported today.

D&B measured its current weekly index at $6.12, compared with $6.17 a week earlier and $6 in the comparable week last year. On May 28, the indicator stood at $6.11.

A series of "Catholic Information Classes" will begin in Monessen next Monday at St. Leonard's Hall, it was announced today by the chancery office of the Greensburg Catholic Diocese.

The classes will be held for ten consecutive Mondays at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Andrew Hredzak, recently-appointed pastor at St. Anne Church in Fellsburg, will be in charge. A graduate of Duquesne University and St. Vincent Seminary, Father Hredzak is a member of the Matrimonial Tribunal and Music Commission of the Diocese.

The instruction classes will be conducted in seven centers throughout the diocese. Greensburg, Ford City, Indiana, Monessen, New Kensington, Uniontown and Vandergrift.

A spokesman for the diocese said the instructions are intended for both Catholics and non-Catholics. There will be no charge and no pressure or obligation to join the church.

"This is merely an attempt to help interested persons gain a better understanding of the Catholic faith," the chancery announcement stated.

The classes will be conducted informally and will consist of systematic talks on Catholic truths, discussion, and the regular use of the question box.

Truck Driver Is Cleared in Death

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP)—Roy Gattis, 44, Gurdon, Ark., truck driver was cleared Tuesday night of any blame in the death of James Wingfield, a hometown friend.

The 53-year-old Wingfield died of a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday shortly after Gattis struck him once "to quiet him" so he could be carried to a hotel after a night of drinking.

Dr. William Baird Greene County pathologist said he had no evidence to support a possibility the blow brought on the hemorrhage. He said Wingfield died 15 minutes after being struck and a hemorrhage of the type he had usually does not cause death for at least two hours.

The two men, life-long friends had been living here while hauling pipe for a gas line project.

BARUCHS ATTEND RED RECEPTION — Among those attending the reception given by Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, at the Soviet Legation in New York, were Bernard M. Baruch, his son, Bernard Jr., and Paul Robeson, Negro singer and Soviet sympathizer. Here, Gromyko is shown greeting the 86-year-old banker and his son.

How to buy "vitamins"

Door-to-door peddlers are around now, selling vitamin preparations and nutritional supplements. The talk is mighty convincing. But, remember, talk won't do a thing for you. There's only one way to be sure of what vitamin you need if any are needed at all. That is to see your family physician. He and he alone is qualified to prescribe for you. Always buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from a registered pharmacist. Then you'll know what you're getting—and you'll get your money's worth.

Fall Vegetables Ready for Use in Many Pie Recipes

By EDITH M. BARBER

Fall is the season for hearty pies, for which pumpkin, squash or sweet potatoes may be used. Any one of these fall vegetables may be cooked, mashed and used as the base. Of course, both pumpkin and sweet potatoes in canned form are always ready for use, and will give just as good results when used as an ingredient.

Edith Barber

For the standard pie of this type, the mixture is placed in an unbaked pie shell, and nothing is better than a pie prepared by the old-fashioned method. Generally a round pie pan is used, but one Southern recipe for sweet potato pie calls for a rectangular dish and a latticed crust.

You may like a more delicate filling which is placed in a cooled baked pie shell. Gelatine is used to thicken the filling, which should be thoroughly cooled before it is placed in the shell. The filled pie shell should be chilled in tthe refrigerator before serving, and garnished with whipped cream and shredded coconut.

With pumpkin, squash and sweet potatoes, spices should be used as a flavoring. The choice of spices and amount used will be settled by your own taste.

DEEP-DISH SWEET POTATO PIE

Wash and peel 2 large sweet potatoes. Cut into ¼-inch slices and place in saucepan with 1-inch boiling water and ½ teaspoon salt. Cover and cook until almost tender, about 5 to 8 minutes. Drain and place in 9 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Mix 2-3 cup sugar with ½ teaspoon ground allspice and sprinkle over potatoes. Pour in 1½ cups hot milk and dot with 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. Cover with lattice pastry strips and fasten these to edge with fluted pastry rim. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 Degrees F.) about 15 to 20 minutes, or until crust is brown. Serve warm. Yield 6 to 8 servings.

PUMPKIN BAVARIAN PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup mashed cooked pumpkin
½ cup milk
2 egg whites
1-3 cup heavy cream, whipped
9-inch baked pie shell

Soften gelatine in cold water. Mix egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, salt and spices in top of double boiler. Add grated lemon rind, pumpkin and milk, and mix well. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Stir in softened gelatine. Chill until mixture begins to thicken (this mixture chills quickly over ice water), and fold in remaining ½ cup sugar. Fold into pumpkin mixture. Add whipped cream and pour into cooled baked 9-inch pie shell. Chill. If desired, decorate with additional whipped cream, shredded coconut and ground nutmeg. Yield: 6 servings.

Tasty Recipes

RICE AND CHEESE CUSTARDS

2 cups cooked rice
3 cups milk, scalded
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups grated cheese
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Mix ingredients. Pour mixture into 6 buttered custard cups and set in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes, or until custards are firm. Garnish with rings of pimiento and serve at once. Yield: 6 servings.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

THE SOUTH GIVES SWEET POTATO PIE A NEW LOOK — makes it a deep-dish, lattice-crust, fragrantly spiced beauty. Cup after cup of steaming hot coffee should wash it down.

Pears Are Now At Their Best

There are many varieties of pears. The best known and the most widely distributed is the golden-colored Bartlett, in season in fresh form throughout late summer and early fall. California supplies most of the fruit in the early season. This is followed by pears from the Northwest.

The Pear Bureau of all these western states briefed Food Editors recently. There must be just the right amount of water for good fruit development. Often, orchards are irrigated, but sometimes overflowing water must be pumped away from the orchards. The California pears are usually long-necked, while the northern fruit is usually shorter and broader.

Much fresh fruit is shipped to distant markets, but a large amount is canned for winter supply. Since canning practices have been standardized, canned pears have become one of the most popular fruits for desserts and salads and, occasionally, for more elaborate sweet concoctions. An example of this is pears Helene, a combination of pears, ice cream and chocolate sauce.

Another way of using pears is in fritters. These are delicious with meat as a main luncheon course.

PEARS HELENE

Place small ball of vanilla ice cream in individual serving dish. Cover with half of peeled, cored fresh pear, or with canned pear half. Top with another small ball of ice cream and pour chocolate sauce over fruit and ice cream.

Cheese and Rice Are Popular October Foods

There are just not enough months, weeks or days in the year to be set aside especially for the promotion of individual foods. For instance, October has been proclaimed as the festival month for both cheese and rice.

Fortunately, one of these foods can supplement the other, so they may be celebrated either individually or together. Cheese production in this country, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is far ahead of that of last year. The rice harvest is good, so assured of plentiful supplies.

Cheese is one of the most important basic foods because of its high protein content, which allows to replace meat for occasional meals. Rice is an inexpensive supplement whose principal asset is its contribution for heat and energy. It is often served with chicken fricassee.

Another food which should be considered during the fall is favorite dried vegetables. Peas in this form make delicious, hearty soups so appetizing for lunch or supper on a chilly day. Plenty of savory vegetables and herbs are, naturally, needed with this as with other dried vegetables.

CHEESE FONDUE

1 ½ cups milk
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 ½ cups grated cheese
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon butter, melted
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
3 egg whites, well beaten

Add milk to bread crumbs and let stand until milk is absorbed. Add cheese, salt, paprika and melted butter. Add beaten egg yolks. Fold in well-beaten egg whites and pour into greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 45 minutes. Serve at once. Yield: about 6 servings.

QUICK MEAL

Veal scallopini, noodles with sour cream, cabbage salad, corn with pimiento, chilled canned pears, coffee. (Fresh pears may replace the canned pears, if desired).

Roasting Chickens Plentiful

If there is such a thing as a season for roasting chickens, this is it. They are quite different from those old hens which, after they had stopped laying, were called roasters. These modern large chickens weigh around four to five pounds and the meat is tender and sweet.

Be sure the dealer gives with a roaster, some of the solid pieces of fat he has removed when dressing the bird. The fat is clear yellow and can be tried out over low heat, after which it will provide plenty of liquid fat for the bread stuffing, to which it adds such good flavor. It will need but a little minced onion and a small amount of good poultry seasoning. By the way, when choosing the latter, it will pay to purchase a combination offered by an herb specialist.

The bread should be a little dry and coarsely crumbled before it is mixed with the seasoning and the melted drippings. The cavity of the chicken should be rubbed well with salt and pepper before it is stuffed lightly with the dressing. The outside should then be rubbed with salt and pepper before the bird is placed in a greased pan and liberally dotted with butter. During the baking, it should be basted occasionally.

After the roaster has been removed to a platter, the remaining drippings should be poured into a small bowl and passed at the table. There it can be dropped over the chicken and mashed potatoes that are a favorite accompaniment for roasted chidken.

ROAST CHICKEN

For a 4-pound bird, allow 4 cups stuffing. Rub inside and outside with salt and pepper. Stuff and dot liberally with butter. Place breast side up in uncovered pan. Roast in hot oven (450 Degrees F.) about 20 minutes, until brown. Reduce heat to slow (325 Degrees F.) for the remainder of the period, allowing 18 to 25 minutes per pound. Baste occasionally with fat from pan, or a mixture of butter and hot water. Turn chicken breast down 30 minutes before it is done. To determine when a chicken is done, insert a 2-tined fork in thickest part of breast and second joints.

STUFFING

Try out piece of solid fat which accompanies roaster. Cook slowly over low heat until liquid fat has been extracted. Crumble dry bread coarsely. Season with salt and pepper, and a small amount of poultry seasoning. Stir in chicken fat and place in neck and breast cavities of chicken. Fasten skin over stuffing with small skewers or toothpicks.

Flu Won't Stop Visit of Queen

LONDON (UP) — Queen Elizabeth will go to the United States and Canada on schedule this month despite the fact her son has flu, informed sources predicted today.

They said 8 - year - old Prince Charles, who was put in the infirmary at Cheam School Wednesday, probably would be well again by the time the Queen and Prince Philip are scheduled to start their trip Oct. 12.

Word of Prince Charles' illness was sent to Buckingham Palace Wednesday.

It appeared to be a mild form of flu now sweeping Britain and the usual cure is several days in bed.

NEW TINSELAND TWOSOME — New twosome in Hollywood's night life is Lauren Bacall, widow of Humphrey Bogart, and singer-actor Frank Sinatra. The talk is they contemplate marriage, but they won't say.

German Society to Meet at Laurelville

The Pennsylvania German Society will meet for the first time in its 67-year history in Western Pennsylvania on Oct. 11 and 12 at the Laurelville Mennonite Camp, four miles east of Mt. Pleasant.

The German Society will meet jointly with the Westmoreland-Fayette Historical Society during these two days.

Guest speaker for the Friday evening meeting at 8 o'clock will be Dr. Ralph C. Wood of Philadelphia, Secretary of the Pennsylvania German Folklore Society, who will address the two groups on "Pennsylvania German Influence in Southwestern Pennsylvania."

Dr. Wood has had teaching positions at Cornell, Princeton, Lehigh, the Pennsylvania State University, and Muhlenberg. Until recently he was executive director of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation in Philadelphia.

On Saturday, Oct. 12, the two societies will meet again at 10 a. m. and will hear an address by Dr. Harold S. Bender, Dean of Goshen College Biblical Seminary, Goshen, Indiana, on "Mennonites in American History and Literature." There will be a noon luncheon in the camp dining hall followed by a brief period of fellowship.

Overnight reservations for lodging may be reserved by writing to Neil Gingerich, Manager, Laurelville Mennonite Camp, Route 2, Mt. Pleasant. Programs and tickets for the luncheon may be secured from J. A. Hostetler, 721 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, for $2.50 each.

Among those planning to attend from a distance are parties from Reading, Allentown, Lancaster, State College, and other points east. Several members from the Society of Brothers, Farmington, Pennsylvania, are planning to be present. Others from Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania will be on hand. Among those attending will be genealogists, historians, and folklorists including several from the Pennsylvania State University.

The public is cordially welcome to attend any of the sessions and the luncheon.

Anyone Want to Buy Surplus Telephone Wire

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (UP) —Officials of the Rutherfordton Rifle Club are a usually carefree lot, but today they're worried.

They're wondering who's going to pay charges on 167 boxes of surplus Army telephone wire shipped them by mistake.

Several months ago the club ordered a single box of the wire, value $20 80, for use in stringing a telephone line at its rifle range.

The club waited and waited, but no wire showed up. Then a member bought the necessary wire to string the line from a junk dealer —for 50 cents.

Monday night member Kenneth Hill was awakened and asked to accept the club's shipment of wire. He nearly fell out of bed when he learned the shipment consisted of 167 boxes of wire, 125 pounds to the box

"Send it back!" Hill gulped

Wednesday Club Treasurer Gene Norville received an invoice and bill for $28,000 for the wire shipped from the Army Signal Corps depot at Lexington, Ky.

The wire was reconsigned to the Army's Conley, Ga., depot, but nobody seems to know who's going to pay the shipping charges.

Playhouse 90 Features Diana Lynn Tonight

Diana Lynn and John Ireland will co-star with Sterling Hayden in Playhouse 90's "A Sound of Different Drummers," tonight from 9:30 — 11 p.m. on KDKA-TV.

Robert Alan Aurthur's original teleplay deals with a totalitarian state of the future in which the people enjoy every material luxury but must adhere to a pattern of rigid intellectual conformity.

Hayden will play Gordon Miller, a young officer of the government police orgapization which is assigned to suppress illegal intellectual activity. But even a member of this highly disciplined group is not immune to the blandishments of a beautiful girl and the temptation of illicit "ideas."

Diana Lynn plays the beautiful girl, and John Ireland is seen as Ben Hammond, fellow-member with Miller in the police organization.

Steel Probe to Open Oct. 21

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate investigators will reopen their inquiry into the competitive and price situation in the steel industry on Oct. 21.

The Senate anti-trust subcommittee said that hearings, to be held here, are expected to run for about two weeks. The names of witnesses who will testify will not be announced until after the return of subcommittee Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) from Europe later this month.

The first round of hearings in August centered on the $6 a-ton—or about 4 per cent—steel price increase put into effect by United States Steel on July 1. Other steel producers followed U.S. Steel's lead and raised their prices later.

Artificial Moon Will Measure Heat of Air

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP)—An artificial moon with four tiny sensors protruding like eyes on stalks will attempt next year to measure the heat in the gigantic atmospheric cauldron that manufactures the weather.

If the attempt is successful it will give weather forecasters vital information now almost completely lacking.

The experiment was described by Dr. V. E. Suomi, of the University of Wisconsin at a 13 - nation conference on rocket and satellite programs of the International Geophysical Year (IGY).

The so-called "heat balance" is one of six major scientific missions assigned to the artificial moons this country will try to launch into 18,000 - mile-an-hour flights around the earth starting early next spring.

Earth's atmosphere is the moving part of a giant heat engine which gets its energy from the sun. The way the atmosphere moves determines the weather.

The tropical regions generally receive more energy from the sun than they lose by radiation. Regions nearer the poles, however, lose more than they receive. This is offset in part by export of heat from the low latitudes to the higher ones.

"This differential heating and resulting heat transport by the atmosphere and by ocean currents is," Suomi said, "the very basis of all our weather."

Weather forecasters know but can make little use of that fact in their work because detailed information about the "energy budget . . . is simply too inadequate."

So Suomi and his associates have devised a way to measure the "heat input" from the sun and the amount radiated back and thus arrive at the planet's "heat balance."

Horse Parlors In Wheeling Under Crackdown

WHEELING, W. Va. (UP) — Notices that Wheeling horse race parlors must "get out of business and stay out" will be mailed to known bookies in an effort by police to suppress gambling.

The official notices, prepared after conferences among city officials, police and legal advisors, are to be sent out within the next few days.

The crackdown follows mounting pressure from the state to clean up illegal gambling which has curtailed the mutuel handle at Wheeling Downs. The racetrack complained formally of the curtailment about six weeks ago and the state reported its own share of the handle has decreased as much as 10 per cent.

According to the plan, charges will be preferred against bettors found in horse race parlors as well as against the operators and the owners of the buildings.

Lt. John Murphy, in charge of efforts to wipe out the illegal gambling, said he already had informed many known bookies of the "cease and desist" order prior to the mailing of the notices.

Safety Should Be A Habit

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Safety is a habit all of us should develop. This is especially true for those who work in huge industrial plants where accidents can happen so easily.

Most large concerns have safety programs and safety directors to protect the lives of the employees. Yet, primarily, safety is a personal responsibility.

As far as your safety is concerned, it is your responsibility. No one suffers from an accident more than the person injured in the mishap.

There are countless safety rules, all of which probably carry very sound advice. But which are the best rules? Which rules should we memorize and practice each day?

The National Safety Council had a contest recently in which more than 1,000 safety rules were submitted from all over the world.

The following ten rules were judged the best:

1. Correct or report any unsafe conditions.
2. Use, adjust and repair equipment only when authorized.
3. Follow instructions: don't take chances; if you don't know, ask.
4. Help keep everything clean and orderly.
5. Report all injuries; get first aid promptly.
6. Use the right tools and equipment for the job; use them safely.
7. Use prescribed protective equipment, wear safe clothing; keep it in good condition.
8. Don't horseplay; avoid distracting others.
9. When lifting, bend your knees: get help for heavy loads.
10. Comply with all safety rules and signs.

These rules were drawn up chiefly for industrial workers. But I think even you housewives can see where they apply to the home as well as the shop.

Yet, all things considered, we've got to admit that the best safety device of all is located just above the ears.

Question and Answer

J. M.: Should one force a child to eat?

Answer: It is not advisable. If the child is continuously forced to eat, he will develop a dislike for the foods offered and the eating problem will become worse as time progresses.

World of TV—

Patrice Munsel not Square, She Claims

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — Patrice Munsel, the first Metropolitan Opera star ever to pilot her own network TV series, wants to get one thing straight at the start — she's not a square.

"It's terrible, the picture some people have of opera," said Munsel with a fetching pout. "They get this image of a big fat soprano puffing away, clutching a big white handkerchief. She is singing something that not only sounds awful, it sounds comic."

Miss Munsel, a soprano who is neither fat nor puffing, clutched a billowy white table napkin and dug vigorously into her chopped sirloin. "They think of us as a bunch of squares. Well, I'm not a square and neither are many of the other singers I know.

"That's one of the reasons I'm so anxious to do this TV show—I want to show people that opera singers don't weigh 280 pounds, that they're human and know how to have fun."

Assisted by Husband

Miss Munsel will launch her new half-hour ABC-TV entry on Oct. 18. Assisted by her husband, Bob Schuler, who is producing the show, she has worked up a catch-all musical format.

"Oh, I'll slip in an operatic aria every now and then," said Miss Munsel, "just so the viewers can get to learn for themselves that opera isn't so bad. But I'll also do novelties, good pop and standards.

"We'll probably have a basic idea for each show. The sponsor has given us a floating commercial that we can stick in anywhere —If we want to do a story, for instance, we can do it in one piece without breaking in.

"The sponsor (Buick) told me they'd let me do anything I want to do and that's one of the big reasons I decided to get into TV. And of course, the money—I won't say that had nothing to do with it."

In For Grueling Go

Miss Munsel, also ticketed in for 12 performances at the Met this season, is aware she may be in for a grueling go. "It's going to be taxing," she said. "Fortunately, I have a husband who is a good organizer and the Met has cooperated so I won't have any performances on Friday, the day of my show. But I will have some Saturday performances and that may be a little rough.

"But I want to diversify my talents and this is my chance. I've done light opera ('Naughty Marietta,' 'Rose Marie'), a picture ('Melba') and worked Las Vegas with an act. I've always liked TV and it seems to me if I'm well organized enough, I won't have time to be nervous.

"I'm not worried about it. The only way to go into TV and remain a human being is to say I'm going to do the best I can. If the public doesn't like the show, well, too bad. But it's nothing to lose your peace of mind over."

The Nobel prizes were established by the will of the late Alfred Nobel, Swedish chemist and the inventor of dynamite.

Best Film Not Always Usable

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) —One-hundred feet of the best action film ever shot at Universal-International Studios will never be seen on the screen because the heroics weren't in the script.

Location: Cuernavaca, Mexico.

Scene: Western St.

Action: A horse canters down the center of a dusty road, stumbles and throws its rider to the ground.

All went well until the rider, a stunt man, caught his foot in the stirrup and was dragged 20 yards by the rampaging horse. Then, while the cameras continued to grind, Jock Mahoney, the star of the picture, rushed in and wrestled the animal to a halt.

Former Stunt Man Himself

"I just grabbed the horse by the ears and pulled his head down between his legs," Mahoney said. "Somebody had to do something to keep the stunt man from getting his head kicked off."

Mahoney, a 6-foot 4-inch giant of a man, has a special reason for lending a hand to the stunt men. He was a bruises-for-pay guy once himself.

This particular footage showed Jock to good advantage, but it won't be used in the completed version of "Western Story" because members of the crew, dressed in modern clothes, rushed into the shot as Jock played real life hero.

"The stunt man would have been all right," he said, "if he had had the right equipment.

Extra Mean Horse

"Usually for a stunt like that there's a release cord on the stirrup to keep a man from getting dragged. And that was an extra mean horse anyhow. It had bucked off a couple of other stunt men earlier in the picture."

"They figure stunt men are expendable," Jock grinned. "That they get paid for risking their necks. But if I'd been hurt it would have held up the picture and cost a pile of money.

"I still do all my own stunts," he concluded proudly. "After five years of specializing in falling off cliffs and doing fight scenes, it hurts a man's pride to stand around and watch another guy step in for him."

Naked Truth on Television Is Shown in Britain

LONDON (UP)—British television audiences saw the naked truth about nudism Wednesday night.

Interviewer Daniel Farson visited "Spielplatz" (playground) nudist colony north of London for a 15 minute program in which nudists cavorted about in the all together.

One view showed pretty Mrs. Iseult Kelly sitting anked by a swimming pool while other nudists played tennis, ping pong and volleyball in the background. A few children strolled by with their mothers.

But any views of complete torsos were taken from a comfortable distance which obscured anatomical details. Closeupts concentrated on heads and shoulders.

The Independent Television Authority said no one called in to complain but that one man called in to congratulate Farson for his objective interviewing.

LOCAL GIRL IN ANCIENT GREECE — Georgette Vernaccini, of Monessen, is pictured in front of the ancient Acropolis in Athens, Greece. The 80-day round trip covered some 14,000 miles.

Georgette Vernaccini Enjoyed Greece Visit

Teachers probably would be somewhat lenient if they caught Georgette Vernaccini "day dreaming" during her classes at Monessen High School these days.

For Georgette just recently returned from an 80-day trip that took her from Monessen to the ancient and historical city of Athens, Greece, In all, the trip covered some 14,000 miles via car, bus, boat, train and airplane

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs Everett Vernaccini, of Montrayer Dr., Georgette and 55 other young women and men from throughout the United States made the trip to Greece under the auspices of American Field Service, an organization promoting goodwill among America and its allies.

Georgette began her long and adventurous journey from New York on June 20. There she met with her companions for a bus trip to Montreal, Canada, from where the group boarded the steamship "Aroso Kulm" for Rotterdam.

Then a train took her through Germany, Switzerland and Italy After visiting Milan and riding gondolas in Venice, a ship took her to the Greek seaport of Piraeus.

One of the Family

There she was met by Mr. and Mrs. Kleanthis Anagnostou and daughter, Mytro, 16, with whom Georgette made her home while in Athens.

"They were wonderful They treated me like one of the family," she said

Georgette said Mr Anagnostou is a famous lawyer in Athens while Mrs. Anagnostou is a well known romantic novelist and concert pianist.

Her constant companion, Mytro plans to follow her mother's footsteps as a pianist

"Mytro dreams of the day when she can play as well as her mother She practices 10 to 12 hours a day," Georgette remarked

In Athens, Georgette attended a reception given at the home of the U S ambassador, along with visiting the ancient Acropolis, agora (market place) and numerous other historical buildings and monuments

"The beauty of Greece is breath-taking," the teenager said

Following her extensive visiting in Athens, Georgette and her hosts went to the beautiful summer resort of Loutraki, 60 miles from Athens There she enjoyed swimming, dancing and eating "in a setting out of this world" The resort is located on the Bay of Corinth an arm of the blue Adriatic sea.

Customs Similar

Georgette said the Greek customs and ways of living, particularly in larger cities, are not too unlike those in America. However their eating habits are different In Athens, she said, the main meal is at 2 o'clock in the afternoon Most of the mornings she spent swimming and "was I hungry when 2 o'clock rolled around," she recalled.

While she was there, the weather was extremely hot Stores closed from 3 to 7 p.m. daily because of the heat. Usually, she said, everyone tried to find a cool place to sleep during the off-hours

Young Greek girls are not permitted to use cosmetics In fact, she said she learned that many of the Grecian women never use cosmetics until after they are married The average marrying age for Greek girls is about 25, she said

Give a Greek person something sweet to eat and you have made a real friend," Georgette said with a grin "I never saw people who craved sweets the way they do."

She said the Greek women's clothes are similar to those worn in this country They make their own clothes, Georgette stated, because there is no store in Greece that carries ready-to-wear attire. Only yardgoods are available

Georgette began her journey home in mid-August, sailing on a Turkish liner on the Mediterranean Sea, to Naples, Italy. After a visiting to the ancient ruins of Pompeii, she sailed to Marseilles, France, and then took a train to Paris

While in Paris, she was stricken with a slight case of flu. She recovered quickly and then boarded a plane that took her across the Atlantic Ocean to New York City

There she and her companions left for their homes.

"Eto oreo taxethe, ala ene efharesto theote eme spete," meaning "It was a nice trip, but it is good to be home." Georgette said

Holders Of Stock Growing

NEW YORK (UP)—Investment company executives, meeting here for their annual convention, look for further broadening of their stockholder lists by leaps and bounds over the coming years.

The group isn't pessimistic on the market and it points out that owners of mutual funds haven't been selling during the recent market decline.

"People don't sell mutual funds," says Walter L Morgan, president of Wellington Fund, the nation's second largest balanced fund with assets of some 600 million dollars

He says that the number of mutual fund holders has doubled every five years since 1940 and if future growth continues at this pace there will be more than four million accounts by 1960 and ten million by 1966.

'Based on the size of the average account today ($3,600) gross invested assets of mutual funds could exceed 15 billion dollars in 1960 and 36 billion dollars in 1966," Morgan says.

Such vast holdings, he says would not interfere with the market's liquidity since they would be only a small percentage of the total listings.

'Fixed Dollars'

Currently 1,384 000 investors hold 2,924,000 shareholder accounts valued at $9,102,000,000 which is abou 4½ per cent of 111 shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange

Morgan says that the future shareholders of mutual funds will be drawn from people who have in the past had most of their savings in "fixed dollars" represented by savings accounts, savings and loan shares, U S savings bonds, and life insurance

"Tomorrow's shareholders must first be educated to the income and profit possibilities of investing." Morgan says.

"They must be made aware of the need to protect themselves from inflation—which has sliced the buying power of the dollars they thought they were saving with safety in 190 by more than 50 per cent

"They must realize that past history has shown that more often than not there is greater risk in fixed dollar savings than in variable dollar investments"

Noting that the federal reserve in a recent survey found only one family in ten with income of more than $3,000 thought common stocks were the best place to put surplus funds while six out of ten favored fixed dollar savings Morgan said this is just one example of the need for education of the public on the merits of investing

Wine Drinkers Are Quizzed About Milk

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) — Because Italians are among the heaviest consumers of alcohol (in wine) in the world, it will surprise no one to learn that the average Italian thinks milk is only for babies

But because Italians also have one of the lowest rates of alcoholism in the world, their ways of handling beverages could be useful information for countries where alcoholism is a problem — such as the United States.

Dr. Giorgio Lolli of Yale University and Dr Pierpaolo Luzzatto-Fegiz of the Doxa Institute, Milan, Italy are engaged in a scientific gathering of that information Their newest finding—from questioning 1,453 representative Italians—concerns Italians and milk.

Milk Use Declines

"More than 85 per cent of the sample had been breast fed in infancy, and could discuss this experience with few or no adult inhibitions" they reported. "The subjects continued to use milk but in steadily decreasing amounts from early childhood to adolescence and early adulthood At the same time there was presumably a parallel decrease in the emotional attachments to milk which expressed the psychological rather than the physiological needs of the individual"

Among "the major factors" which have prevented "alcoholic excesses and alcohol addiction" in Italy, the scientists thought "the appreciation of milk especially pertinent" because 'milk is the first food to which the newborn child is exposed, a food which supplies not only physical nourishment but the protection and the security of a mother's love"

"It provides the child with mixed or blended or confused pleasures of body and mind Most of the healthy, fundamental emotions which lead to adequate growth and social adjustment of the individual are linked with the experiences involving the use of milk by the infant, and to the resultant relationships between mother and child," they said.

Whereas the average Italian thinks milk is for babies and wine, with meals, is for adults, "The attitudes and actions of an alcoholic are strikingly different," they said. "To a certain extent alcohol represents to the alcoholic what milk represents to the infant Alcohol gives to the adult alcoholic a combination of physiological and psychological satisfactions which, in many ways, seem comparable to the gratifications supplied by milk to the infant"

In the final stages of alcoholism, they added, "The alcoholic seems to be restlessly searching for alcohol in the same way the newborn infant searches for milk This confusion is obviously uncommon among Italians.
